was seen here in the hope that it might contribute to bringing about a solution of the Manchurian trouble by acceptance of the principles of these treaties.

The League quarters the decision was regarded as a victory for the Japanese.

The proposal does not bid them to withdraw their troops in Manchuria during the commission inquiry, but it was understood the Japanese spokesman intimated the "request" might retire if conditions improved and made evacuation safe for lives and property of Japanese.

AMISTICE FOR MONTHS

Tomorrow there will be an open meeting of the council and it is expected the members will adopt the decision agreed upon in principle today.

Threats that the Manchurian problem will be fetched out for months while the commission makes its study in China—of which, if the Japanese proposal is not modified—an opportunity would be provided for the belligerents to cool off.

Today's agreement was reached after it had become apparent the powers were ready to accept strong-arm measures to force withdrawal of Japanese troops and that Britain and Great Britain at least were not disposed to launch an armistice boycott.

Remnant of Gen. Mah's
Army Bombed by Fliers

Tientsin, Nov. 20 (AP)—Remnants of the defeated Kuomintang army of Gen. Ma Chuan-shan, Japanese army fliers today dropped a series of bombs on the remnants of the army at Tientsin, now under Japanese control.

Japanese from Hsienan said 3000 Chinese troops were bombed at Hsienan, 10 miles north of Tientsin, in a recent air attack. Japanese fliers dropped bombs on the remnants of the army at Tientsin, now under Japanese control.

JAP AUTO TRACKET

Armed with an insurance policy, motor numbers and other data for a "mythical" auto, a Hyde Park youth was issued number plates at the registry of motor vehicles for an auto that didn't exist, it was revealed today in Roxbury court.

An unique scheme of automobile theft was uncovered at the hearing by Judge J. J. Fucillo, who said the youth planned to "make $3000 so he could go into legitimate business."

Charles G. Boyce, 19, of Hingham, "master mind" of the scheme, was arrested near Boston Arena last night when he was trying to remove the original plates from a stolen car.

Boyce had his new plates and an alternate list of tools, police said, in $2000 for a hearing Dec. 2.

Unfavorable Data Collected on Tax Bill

Congressional Party See
Operation of Canada's Plan
at Close Range

Aboard special congressional train, en route to Washington, Nov. 20 (INS)—Congress and the people of the United States are going to hear a lot about Canada's sales tax system this winter.

With 45 United States Senators and Representatives aboard this train, returning today to Washington, following a five-day tour of Canada, the sales tax will be put to the test in the forthcoming battle on how to balance the federal budget.

The Congressmen have studied practical operation of the sales tax at close range, in Ottawa, seat of the Canadian government, they heard from government officials that the tax had been a success; that it was comparatively easily administered and one of the most "palatable" forms of taxation ever devised.

BRINGING BACK DATA

Statistics on tax collections under the sales tax system of the Canadian law and a budget of facts gathered from those who pay the tax as well as those who collect it—these were the brief cases of the legislators.

Included in the party, which left Quebec last night, was Senator Charles (D.) of Utah, Gore and Thomas of Oklahoma, and Austin (R.) of Vermont. King and Thomas are members of the Senate finance committee.

Prominent members of the House Ways and Means committee, including Representatives Canfield (D.) of Indiana, and Estep (D.) of Pennsylvania, Rep. Sturgis (D.) of Alabama, who probably will be made chairman of the House banking and currency committee, were also included.

The group of lawmakers intend to continue their sifting of the sales tax and see how it may be applied to the United States. It is indicated by a decision to hold further meetings in Washington.

MR. HEARST THANKED

Speeches thanking William Randolph Hearst for inviting the legislators to make the journey under his auspices were made at a meeting in Quebec last night.

Mr. Hearst expressed thanks to him for the opportunity for this fact-finding mission was unnecessary.

Ken King said it was the general feeling of the group that Mr. Hearst had made "another patriotic contribution." No attempt was made to discuss the merits of the party for or against the sales tax.

A committee was appointed to extend to the government of Canada, the provincial government of Quebec, and the city of Montreal and Quebec city, the information given on the sales tax.

New York, Nov. 20—Under an unusually heavy police guard Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy arrived today for a brief visit to New York city, which was eliminated from his itinerary on the day of his arrival in America by the State Department after threats had been made of anti-Fascist demonstrations.

The Grandi party arrived by train from Washington at Jersey City, N. J., and was transferred to the city welcoming tug, which they used to travel carefully across the foggy harbor to the Battery.

After his visit there Grandi went to Philadelphia for the night.

1500 POLICE ON GUARD

Under special orders of Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, 1500 police officers were assigned to guard the line of march from the foot of Broadway to City Hall.

There was only one untoward incident during the day and night, occurred when Albert Capelli, alleged anti-Fascist, was arrested near City Hall charged with attempting to march on the running board of Grandi's car.

Before a crowd of unidentified persons had passed more than 1000 feet from the police, Grandi's building fronts along the line of march, the police, in the name of Grandi and the caption:

Los Angeles, Nov. 20—"Temperament," it has been decided, has nothing to do with the feasibility of a contract in the case of J. Edgar Gould, movie actress.

As a result of the State Appellate court's decision, Gould's contract with the C. E. De Mille Pictures Corporation, which she signed in 1928, is binding.

Gould, 28, is a Gould actress, but the court ruled her contract was binding.

WHEELER ISN'T NEEDED; ALL 11 PICKETS FREE

Lawrence, Nov. 20.—With 11 Senators Burton K. Wheeler of Montana heading an imposing array of legal talent ready to do battle in district court for 11 textile strike defendants—Police Capt. Michael A. Barry foiled them all today by getting dismissal of the cases.

The Senator, one of the most forceful but highest-priced lawyers in the country, uttered not a single word during the proceedings, except to acknowledge an introduction to Judge Frederic N. Chandler. Senator Wheeler was up from Washington to defend David K. Niles of Framingham, a Roxbury manager of the Ford Hall Public Forum in Boston, arrested on Nov. 9, during the textile strike, on charges of loitering and intimidation.

Two other principals among the 11 defendants were Matthew R. Verman of New York, a third-year student at Harvard Law School, defended by Ruben L. Lurie and Francis Goodale, and Joseph Salerno of Lawrence, defended by Atty. James T. Roberts. Both were also charged with loitering and intimidation.

Following the court proceedings, Senator Wheeler, accompanied by Lawrence and Essex County Democratic leaders, called on Mayor Michael A. Lander, but the mayor was out and the Senator, ex-Mayor Daniel D. Mahoney, declined several luncheon invitations stating that he was anxious to get to Hudson, his old home town—where he will visit relatives until he goes back to Washington. He will attend the Harvard-Yale game.

VICTORY WITHOUT A WORD

SENATOR WHEELER

DAVID K. NILES

It's probably difficult for a lawyer to refrain from talk and when he's Senator of the gladiator type—well, then it can hardly be done. But Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana had to utter a word in court at Lawrence today to gain the freedom of his client, David K. Niles, Ford Hall Forum manager, charged with strike disorders. Niles, shown here with Sen. Wheeler, was discharged with 10 others accused in the textile strike. (Staff photo.)

Mrs. Cobb Able After Week to Eat, Sleep

pital to leave her a gift of a pink and white jacket.

Mrs. W. D. Ducey, wife of the physician who conducted the hospital, told the Boston Evening American:

"Last night was the first since Mrs. Cobb's arrival that she slept at all soundly.

"The nervous strain under which she has been laboring seemed to diminish, and she obtained a good rest. She also substantially for the first time, and I believe in a few days she'll be able to leave her bed."

"Here we thought from the first that the outcome of the case would show her innocent of any part in the shooting and we feel as pleased as anyone. She is more than a patient here; she is a friend. My second child, Justine, was born here."

NO CALLERS AS YET

"Mrs. Cobb asks for the children almost continually. We think who she rejoins there she will improve greatly."

No callers were admitted to see the widow and John B. Mahan, her attorney, who planned to see her today, decided to wait until later to give her a chance to readjust herself.

Next to the mystery of Cobb's motive in accusing his wife of poisoning, the highlight of the strange case was the disclosure of the manner in which State Detective Francis W. Crenney, by a painstaking investigation, absolved her of the crime.

Unmoved by the stories and gossip which tended to fix the blame for the shooting on Mrs. Cobb, Crenney quietly pursued his probe and eventually, at the eleventh hour, in fact found a cluster of poison pellets and a tooth of the dead man, imbedded in the cellar ceiling in the Cobb home.

This evidence, found on the eve of the opening of the special session of the Bristol County Grand Jury, was the strongest discovered to bear out the theory that Cobb committed suicide.

Crenney last Monday night went to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, with Police Chief Sewell Vickers of Mansfield. He had information from Vickers and Dr. George Burgess Magrath that a certain number of shotgun pellets had been found.

Dr. Magrath had removed a number from the body of the dead Cobb when he performed his autopsy. Others had been found in the cellar. There were still a number missing and Crenney knew these must be found before his case was completed.

At the hospital, to his surprise he found that doctors there had found only a few pellets.

REARS OUT THEORY

He rushed back to Mansfield and obtained special lights with which he made a renewed search of the cellar of the Cobb home. He finally found the tooth and cluster of pellets imbedded at the joint of a rafter and the cellar ceiling, almost directly above the spot of the shooting.

Fitting this discovery into the reconstruction of the shooting, Crenney decided that the position of the tooth and pellets was consistent with his information pointing to a suicide in the case.

It had been agreed by investigators that the butt of the shotgun, found shattered, had been broken by the recoil because it rested on the hard surface of the cellar floor. Examination of the gun disclosed that fingerprints on it were those of Cobb.

Prints were found on the muzzle of the gun. There were none on the trigger. As Crenney figured the shooting, he believed Cobb poured the muzzle of the gun against the lower left side of his face, at the angle of the jaw and below the nose. The hole he believed was placed on the floor.

He figured that Cobb held the muzzle of the gun with one hand and pulled the trigger with the other. His theory had only one drawback, he thought.

There was the possibility that Mrs. Cobb had been struggling with her husband over the gun and might have been thrown to the floor. He figured that she could reasonably have pulled the trigger of the gun while lying on the floor.

NOTE WAS BANNED

He investigated the sweater worn by her at the time, but could find no dirt or other markings to indicate she had been lying on the cellar floor, and dismissed this one obstacle to his theory. He explained the bloodstains on the shoulder of the sweater as being caused when she tried to help Cobb after the shooting.

It was also revealed last night that Dist. Atty. Crenney had extended every measure to get all possible evidence in the case as he was determined there should be no miscarriage of justice. He was unsatisfied with the murder theory, so prominent at the outset of the case, it was revealed.

It was also learned that a legal technician would have prevented the submission of the government's strongest evidence at a murder trial—the bloodstained note, written by Cobb after the shooting and identified by his father and Chief Vickers as his handwriting.

The date of Mrs. Cobb's discharge from the hospital is uncertain. The bureau and iterations she suffered in a fight with her husband before the shooting have cleared up with, but she still has an unhealed broken small bone in one foot.

WHY DID COBB ACCUSE?

by an ugly, spontaneous thought, accuse somebody else. But given time, he would surely regret and retract that accusation.

And a period of six hours elapsed between Cobb's accusation of his wife and his death.

If Cobb, knowingly, made false accusation against the mother of his two children, then he must have conceived that diabolical plan in the instant after the charge of shot tore away his jaw.

The natural reaction then would be a consideration of the results of that plan—possible death and dishonor for his wife—and the decision to retract the charge and tell the truth.

Cobb had six hours in which to retract his hastily conceived charge. If we are to consider suicide—any, yet, although he wrote other notes and remained conscious throughout, he never again referred to the accusation.

ACCIDENT THEORY

The answer, to my mind at least, is that Cobb saw only mistakenly believed his wife had shot him but that he may even have regretted making what he believed was a truthful accusation.

The theory of accident may be developed in this wise. The quarrel between Cobb and his wife had ended, or at least there had been a cessation of hostilities. He went down cellar to fix the furnace.

While down there the thought popped up in his drunken, wandering mind that he had left his shotgun out in his automobile the day previous and that it should be brought into the house, perhaps to be cleaned.

He staggered from the cellar to the garage and got the gun and went back into the cellar again to look the cellar door.

GUN MAY HAVE DROPPED

If he had been intending suicide, he could have shot himself just as well in the garage or in the car as in the cellar.

Once back in the cellar, carrying the gun by the barrel, muzzle pointing upwards, he stumbled. The gun butt crashed on the cellar floor and his hand slipped down the barrel to make contact with the trigger as his face came in line with the muzzle and the discharge.

He was drunk on prohibition gin. The idea of the shotgun at first had been vague in his mind. Perhaps, after returning to the cellar, it vanished from his mind entirely, although he still held it.

And when the shell roared and the shot hit him he had the thought, which later he wrote "Emmy shot me."

The butt piece, instead of being splintered by recoil while resting on the cellar floor, could have been splintered as he dropped it, while he fell.

'KILLER' IN DRY RAID DROPPED BY WOODCOCK

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP).—The suspension of Henry Dierke, dry agent at Englewood, Col., for his part in a scuffle which resulted in the death of Clifford G. Smith, was ordered today by Prohibition Director Woodcock.

Woodcock said Dierke had acted "like a stupid and brutal peace officer" and that steps would be taken to bring about his permanent dismissal.

Woodcock said Dierke engaged in a fist fight with Smith in an attempt to arrest him for possession of a bottle of wine. Smith died after having been hit on the head with a bottle.

CHINA BLAMED FOR PRESENT WAR CRISIS

China's refusal to observe the secret treaty of 1905 between Japan and the Chinese government and other treaties and agreements forced the present Manchurian situation, Dr. Wm. C. Fairfield, of the American Board of Foreign Missions, told the Chamber of Commerce today.

Dr. Fairfield said China contended it was not bound by a treaty concluded by the Chinese, superseded by the republic for 30 years, and that later agreements were never ratified by the Parliament. All of Japan's complaints grew out of these provisions, he stated.

He said the League of Nations must find some way in which to save the "face" of both nations if a pacific and diplomatic solution of the trouble is to be obtained.

BINGHAM ASKS DRY LAW VOTE

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP).—Congress will be asked by Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, to provide a national referendum on prohibition.

Bingham has completed a resolution calling for repeal of the 18th Amendment.

He would have Congress submit the question to state conventions in new amendment to the constitution. By state conventions, Bingham said the issue would be voted upon by the people in selecting delegates.

"I believe there will be more support in Congress for a measure of this kind than for any other move, including modification," he said. "I know of some drys who will be willing to support this because they believe in a referendum. The drys ought not to block an attempt to give people a vote on prohibition."

ANOTHER SCOOP SCORED BY AMERICAN

Another notable news beat was scored yesterday by the Boston Evening American when it announced EXCLUSIVELY in its 7 p. m. Peach edition the fact that Mrs. Cobb had been freed by the grand jury which has been investigating the shooting to death of her husband.

Readers of OTHER Boston evening newspapers read in their final editions that the grand jury WAS EXPECTED to report today. While these readers of other evening newspapers were reading this routine INCOMPLETE news story, Evening American readers were being informed WHAT THE JURY ACTUALLY REPORTED—that it found no indictment against the widow of the slain man.

Of course there were many other late and exclusive items of interest and importance in these 7 p. m. Peach editions—a complete listing of all of the day's news that day it happened.

Each day the Evening American gives its readers this complete news feast in its Peach edition. Readers in fact, take the complete story of the interesting doings of a busy world home with them in their favorite newspaper every evening. They have the comforting assurance (they themselves are NOT being "scooped" on news they are entitled to. The Evening American prints all of TODAY'S NEWS TODAY.

Wally Reid's Son Takes Test for Screen

Hollywood, Nov. 20 (AP).—Wally Reid, Jr., son of Wallace Reid, one of the screen who died 10 years ago, today took a screen test. Young Reid's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Reid, admitted he hoped soon to embark upon a motion picture career. Reid is a Hollywood high school junior.

'TORTURE' FOR PARENTS URGED IN RILEY CASE

Washington, Nov. 20 (NS)—National interest in the fate of Edith Riley, 15-year-old "crazy baby," was evoked today with the receipt of many letters offering assistance in the efforts to bring the girl back to a normal life. Scores of letters have been received at Gallinger Hospital, where the girl is undergoing treatment, while the father and the step-mother, Harry M. and Edith Riley, are under indictment charging insanity.

The girl, according to testimony of policewomen, and the girl's 15-year-old brother, Francis, had been kept a virtual prisoner within the Riley home for nearly eight years, including alleged solitary confinement in a dungeon-like closet for months at a time.

One of the letters received here, urged that the parents if found guilty, be accorded the same treatment as they are alleged to have meted out to the underprivileged child.

While the parents are awaiting arraignment under bond of $200 each, Gallinger Hospital officials were observing the child to determine if her mental deficiency is attributable to parental treatment.

HOUGHTON'S TOY WORLD

The World-O-Fun show is on at Houghton & Dutton Co.'s Toy-world Theater. There are five performances daily, one at 11 a. m. and 1, 2, 3 and 4 p. m. The admission is free. One of the interesting features is "Bunter," the mind reading dog, who adds, subtracts and multiplies. There are many other wonderful dogs in the show. You will enjoy this World-O-Fun clown. It's a great show. (Staff photo.)

DEATH WAR ON 'DEER JACKERS'

Concord, N. H., Nov. 20 (AP)—Chief Warden Karl E. Stone of the New Hampshire Fish and Game Department today issued orders to the north country wardens to "shoot to kill" in a no-quarter war on "deer jacks."

The orders were the result of a recent midnight affray near Jefferson, where "jackers," grimly determined to escape arrest, drove their automobile heading into a warden's machine, then fired from ambush upon the law enforcement man as he followed them up a mountainside on foot.

CAT IS BACK—AND HOW!

Mascot Feline Baffles the Police

Even the sleuths of Hanover st. are baffled!

"Jacko," the Hanover st. police cat is back at his quarters after an automobile injury of last week—and caught four mice and a rat today. And that he just four mice and a rat more than the ever caught before.

Friday the 13th "Jacko" was published in the newspapers. She was a drifter until six months ago. The publicity went to her head, and in her stalling on Hanover st. she ran afoul of a motorist. A trip to the cat hospital on Longwood ave. A mended fracture of the hip—and Jacko came back on the job.

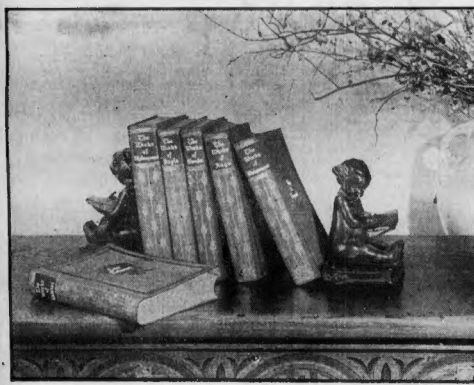

She greeted Special Officer Mason, Chalmers with a mouse; Sgt. Harry Butler with a rat. The bigger the job the bigger the catch.

Not to be impartial she exhibited another house at rollcall, and then two others.

"It must be one of them glands they put in at the hospital," said Sgt. Butler, as he marked the investigation "Closed."

ROGERS STRONG FOR HOUSE IN N. HAMPSHIRE

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
Manchester, N. H., Nov. 20.—Out of the turmoil produced by Manchester's extraordinary political revolt, the Democratic chieftains are today assembling plans to capture the vacant seat in Congress from the First District.

There is, in fact, a confident, still-young man of apple-brown complexion and athletic frame from the Lake section who is tempted to send a message across what lies this to Washington:

"Hello, Gamers, here I come. Save me out a couple of good committee places."

This gentleman is William N. Rogers, of Wakefield, Sanbornville and Concord.

If you called him anything but "Bully" he would know you were a traitor in the State. He was born to politics on the sunny verge of 40 years ago, emancipated at Dartmouth, as might be expected, and the age of 25 or thereabouts saw him occupying a seat in the New Hampshire Assembly, which, with its 600 members, still holds rank as the largest legislative assembly in the world.

IN CONGRESS AT 31
At 31 he was in Congress, having captured this same seat at one of those odd periods when so-called conservative New Hampshire, which is not conservative, rebelled and sent him to look after affairs at Washington and Fred H. Brown, the old National League baseball catcher, to sit on the lid as governor.

The years have dealt well with "Bully" Rogers. Demost, Woodworth, Sullivan and Rogers saw his worth and invited him in from his country law practice. So, he now shares with "Buck" Murdock of Concord the record of being the busiest trial lawyer in the State with a little nest egg laid by for such a time as this.

When the lamented Fletcher Hale passed on and created the Congress vacancy, the Democrats said to themselves:

"If only 'Bully' Rogers would get into it. He could get the rural vote and win as he did before."

Since that moment, Manchester confirmed their highest expectations, jumped into the Democratic ranks and elevated a trio of leaders, namely, Mayviolet Danasee, Caron, County Atty. John L. Sullivan and County Sheriff Mack O'Dowd.

Dr. Caron frankly wanted John L. Sullivan to be the Democratic aspirant for Congress as his father, the late Patrick M. Sullivan, had been before him.

"It is a time for young men," he says. "Even if they should lose this time they will have built for the future of the Democratic party."

SULLIVAN UNDECIDED
John L. has been mutually atop the fence of temporary indecision. He would like the place, as his father before him had sought it, but more than that he seems to want Democratic victory. The name of Sullivan, despite the great ability of his holder, did not sit so well in the rural districts the last time.

New Hampshire has only two Congressional seats. It is normal really and ordinarily Republican. But this is a bye-election that is coming on. The "yes of the country" will be magnified upon it and the "reverberations" will be country-wide if the Democrats win.

Tomorrow — The eleven-hour lineup for the big battle.

Will Rogers Suggests Indian Remedy to Hiccough Victim

Manfield, O., Nov. 20 (AP).—Ira A. King, who has hiccoughed for the last 13 days, will have to undergo an operation before he obtains complete relief, physicians said today.

An X-ray photo revealed an infectious condition in the abdominal region, and this is believed to be the cause of his attack of hiccoughs, which occur at the rate of seven a minute.

Slight improvement was noted in the condition over night, and it is expected the operation will be performed soon if he continues to regain his strength.

Will Rogers joined the hundreds who have sent their favorite cures to King. Rogers suggested "oil of cloves," an infallible old Indian remedy.

Grid Coaches to Go on Air With Curley

Mayor James M. Curley will make a radio address over WNAC at 10 o'clock Sunday evening, on the intercollegiate relief to be offered by the Boston College-Holy Cross charity football game to be held at the Harvard Stadium on Thanksgiving Day.

Charles J. Fox, budget commissioner of Boston, will be chairman, and the coaches will make short addresses.

"If only 'Bully' Rogers would get into it. He could get the rural vote and win as he did before."

Since that moment, Manchester confirmed their highest expectations, jumped into the Democratic ranks and elevated a trio of leaders, namely, Mayviolet Danasee, Caron, County Atty. John L. Sullivan and County Sheriff Mack O'Dowd.

Dr. Caron frankly wanted John L. Sullivan to be the Democratic aspirant for Congress as his father, the late Patrick M. Sullivan, had been before him.

"It is a time for young men," he says. "Even if they should lose this time they will have built for the future of the Democratic party."

CANNONBROKER PAROLE BRIBE IS CHARGED

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 20 (INS).—The Department of Justice today was in receipt of another demand from Sen. Carter Glass of Virginia, asking for further inquiry into the case of Harry L. Goldhurst, convicted broker.

Goldhurst was agent for Bishop Cannon in the latter's stock market dealings, and was convicted of using the mails to defraud. He has been recommended for parole.

Glass has asked Atty-Gen. Mitchell regarding the terms of the recommended parole. He was joined by Miss Eleanor F. Palmer, assistant to former U. S. Dist. Atty. Charles H. Tuttle, at New York.

His letter, Glass explained, "was not regarding the number in the district attorney's office, who were bribed, but as to the covert meaning of the transaction, attended by the obvious attempt to shield from exposure a culprit of somewhat more importance than a broker shop keeper."

"I am told by his assistant that the district attorney was familiar with every detail of this would crime, involving the payment of $5000 in money, with gifts of diamonds and other expensive things. The federal judge says the facts since the word was right under his nose, instead of looking at the criminal, these officials advocated his liberation."

Death Car Driver Fined

Bennington, Vt., Nov. 20.—John Muenchowski, 24, of Albany, N. Y., driver of a truck which fatally injured William Sturmy, Jr., was fined $500 when he pleaded guilty to careless driving.

PAY OF LEATHER WORKERS WILL BE ADJUSTED

Formation of a wage board to recommend minimum rates of wages for women and girls employed in the pocketbook and leather industry has been voted by the State Minimum Wage Commission. It was announced today.

All those employed in the manufacture of pocketbooks, bags, trunks, suitcases, leather novelties and other leather specialties, such as card cases, desk sets, dog collars and similar items, are to be included.

The board will consist of seven members and will be made up thusly: Three representatives of the employers, three of the employees and one representative of the public, who will act as chairman.

The last named will be appointed by the commission as soon as possible. The representatives of the other two groups will be selected from nominations submitted by the employers and the women workers.

The law provides that if less than twice the number of nominations required for employers and employees are submitted for board members, the commission may make part of the appointments directly.

AMERICAN DIPLOMACY SCORES GREAT COUP, FOILED IN FOG

By GILBERT SELDES

THE LONG-SUFFERING PEOPLE of the United States have at last had a taste of real diplomacy, so brilliant that it demands the language of diplomacy to describe it: a coup d'état, or, as who should say, a stroke of genius. It didn't work, but it was magnificent. We found ourselves in—perhaps we got ourselves into—a difficult position; we floundered; and suddenly we not only extricated ourselves, but actually capitalized our misfortunes, to make good fortune. If that isn't the essence of diplomacy, I do not know what it is. And in case you do not recognize this great coup, after all this praise, I shall name it: The proposal to have Lindbergh escort Grandi by air from his boat to Washington.

I do not want to belittle the difficulties of the State Department. Everyone knows that a portion of the Italianate residents of New York are opposed to Mussolini, and it was clear that a demonstration against his Minister might be made at the dock. This sort of thing used to worry the French when Czar Nicholas came to visit, and not only demonstrations, but violence against the person might be expected.

Since America is friendly to the regime of Italy, diplomats consider that any show of hostility would be regrettable; we are responsible for the comfort of distinguished visitors and, officially, we would like them to feel that we harbor no malcontents. (We have, in fact, dropped our hundred-year-old tradition of being the haven of political refugees.) The elaborate game of Let's Pretend, which children and diplomats play, had to be carried on. And, as a commentary, very small children do not say, "I'll hide somewhere and you must find me." They say, "I'll hide under the table and you must pretend you can't find me." It's a diplomatic game.

Big Boys Won't Play

The bigger-mugger of getting a Foreign Minister off a boat and on a train implied more pretence—the pretence that he had not landed in New York. The one thing the State Department could not be sure of was the participation in the game of the anti-Fascists. The whole department might run around in circles assuring every one that Signor Grandi had not landed; but the hard-boiled demonstrators might have rioted just the same. A lack of dignity was indicated.

Secretary of State Stimson has done many admirable things; even the Washington Merry-Go-Round granted him a few of its rare pangs of praise (plus a few of its common pangs of cynical doubt). But he never did anything more crafty and clever than the assignment of Lindbergh to the reception of Grandi. A heavy fog spoiled the act; but the State Department is not responsible for any fog except those it creates itself.

Keep Out of Kentucky

I suggested about a week ago that Theodore Dreiser would be doing all of us a favor by returning to Kentucky to stand trial on the charge of adultery. It would have been known as the "tooth-pick trial" and great fun would have been had by all. But the further action of the Kentuckians is not reassuring. The accusation of criminal syndicalism brought against Dreiser, John Dos Passos, Charles Walker and others has a sinister sound. It seems quite possible that under the Kentucky law (which I do not know in detail) these men might be found technically guilty. And all the Darrows in the world would not save them from spending a year of their lives in litigation and appeals. I reverse my judgment, hastily. I hope that my friend Dos will not be so ill-advised as to wave extradition and go to Kentucky to be a martyr.

One of the most damning indictments of our present social system is that it absorbs the energies of men and women who ought to be free to think about more important things. I do not mean that novelists like Dos Passos and critics like Edmund Wilson ought to be unconscious of economics, miseries, frameups and injustices; a writer is the better for all the things he knows and experiences and feels. But it is a pity that some of the best minds of our time should feel that nothing but economic salvation is of the slightest importance, and that they should give up their natural work to devote themselves to investigations, pleas and protests.

In connection with the Harvard-Huang imbroglio, I think it worth noting that it involves more than the sensitiveness of the college and the excessive language (if any) of the broadcaster. If Huang had even by accident used an obscene word, we should all say that he wasn't to be trusted with a microphone; some of us might say it with regret. On the other hand, no one has, as yet, protested against excessive praise on the air.

A few years ago one of the stations engaged a man to come directly from Broadway first nights to give his impressions to the radio audience. The moment he dealt severely with a play, the producer made protest. The station dropped the feature.

The result is that even the great companies have no idea of their rights on the air. They assume that they may praise; but they feel that some day, someone will have to carry a case to the Supreme Court to learn what the law may be about criticism on the air. 'Till that time intelligence on the air will remain hamstrung. And, perhaps not intentionally, Harvard has helped to keep it so.

BIG ESCORT TO PAY HONOR TO CAVAGNARO

One of the most prestigious police details ever assigned to do honor to a departed member will be seen tomorrow at the funeral of Lieut. Inspector Joseph L. A. Cavnaro, killed in an automobile accident at Middletown, N. Y. The funeral will be held at 10:30 a. m. in the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus North on the North End. Burial will be at Old Calvary Cemetery. Military pall bearers will be one of the men with whom "Joe" worked for years as a detective—Lieut. Inspectors Edward T. Conway, James F. Daley, James F. Conannon, James A. Donnelly, Eileen W. D. LeBlanc and Joseph F. Laughlin. Six uniformed sergeants from the Honor Guard of the City of New York will also be present. The funeral procession will leave the church at 9:30 a. m. for the cemetery. The body of the late Lieut. Inspector will be in the hearse, and the military band will play "The Star-Spangled Banner" as the hearse passes. The funeral procession will be led by the City of New York Honor Guard, followed by the military band, the City of New York Police Department, and the family. The funeral will be a private affair.

HOT DOGS ON DOCK FOR DEB

Joan Lindley, Boston deb, had her coming out party last night at Roxes Wharf, Atlantic ave. Society dined on hot dogs. Story on Page 3.

HOT DOGS GO AT DEB'S PARTY

Boston's elite dined on hot dogs and waffles and danced almost until dawn today at the unusual coming-out party of Joan Lindley, held at the exclusive Waterfront Club on Roxes Wharf. No Boston deb ever made her bow to society in a night club before, but it is doubtful if any ever enjoyed her debut more thoroughly than little Miss Lindley. And the guests also enjoyed the unusual party. From sparkling young girls and their escorts to the stout matrons all were unanimous in the Lindley "hard times" coming-out party was the last word in genuine enjoyment. Atlantic ave. and Roxes Wharf have seldom seen such a sight: in evening clothes turned the dim lit surroundings into a riot of color. Inside the club, the doorman stood guard and withstood all attempts of gawkers to break in on the party. Several attempts were made to get by the guard and one ambitious youth even reached the third floor. It all about 300 attended the party. Barry Wood and Nelson Halliwell of the Harvard football team were invited but were unable to attend. Ben Ticknor, last year's Harvard captain, and several other former Harvard athletes were there, however. Miss Lindley, who lives in Wan Ocker St., Beacon Hill, is a distant relative of Secretary of State Henry Stimson. She was introduced by her mother, Mrs. Ashton Lindley.

Doctor Saves Baby Believed Born Lifeless

Lawrence, Nov. 20—Acclaimed by local physicians as an outstanding achievement, a baby boy apparently born lifeless to Mrs. Michael Perrie of 23 Coolidge st., was literally brought back to life by the injection of a solution of adrenalin directly into the infant's heart by Dr. Herbert Coulson, of this city, in Clover Hill Hospital. Although the infant was believed lifeless when delivered, Dr. Coulson made the injection, and 20 minutes later it is reported, a faint heart flutter was discernible, followed 10 minutes later by breathing. Half an hour later the infant was pronounced alive and hearty and both the child and its mother were reported as "doing nicely" at the hospital today.

Driver Slightly Hurt in 20-Ft. Truck Drive

Rumford, Me., Nov. 20 (AP)—A 200-foot drive in his auto truck from a snow-dumping platform to the rocks on the shore of the Androscoggin River today cost Charles T. Hubbard of Rumford his machine but only minor injuries to his person. Hubbard said the steering gear failed. The truck first dropped 100 feet to a ledge, rolled over twice and fell the rest of the way in the water's edge.

Forges $15 Check, Goes Up for Life

Owego, N. Y., Nov. 20 (INS)—After pleading guilty to forging a $15 check, William Clifford Terwilliger of Sayre, Pr. today was sentenced to a life term in Auburn Prison. MAN JAILED 23 YEARS CLEARED

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP)—Jesse Lucas, who spent 23 years in prison for murder, for the commission of which another man is reported to have confessed from his deathbed, today asked the Illinois Supreme Court to reverse itself and clear him of the stigma of "murderer."

The plea, which attorneys termed extraordinary because it had no basis in specific statutes, produced surprised affidavits from witnesses who helped convict Lucas in 1908 for the slaying of Clyde Schwaner at Mt. Carmel, Ill., saying their testimony was perjured. Lucas also declined a pardon as "an inadequate remedy" because it would presume him guilty, and asked the Supreme Court for complete exoneration.

The record now stands King Trajandipok of Siam, $35. Premier Laval of France, $30. Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, $15. The Italian minister gave $40 in each of several chauffeurs who drove him, including one of the White House drivers.

LEADER WOULD BURN CHURCHES

New York, Nov. 20 (INB)—Burning scores of churches which are "inefficient" to revive interest in religion was advocated by Dr. Elbert M. Cossery, director of the Methodist Bureau of Architecture. "Many churches being erected today become obsolescence on the day of dedication," he said. "They are not planned to fit the needs of modern religious educational program."

FIRST NATIONAL STORES.

The double guarantee of meat satisfaction

Every hour of the day two government meat inspectors are in constant attendance in our meat plant. Every piece of meat sent out to our stores must have their ok, and they have the power to close the plant if anything in the handling of the meat does not meet their high standards of health and cleanliness. This inspection is not compulsory. But, with our own inspection for quality, it is part of First National's exclusive, double guarantee of satisfaction that comes with every piece of Blue Ribbon meat that you buy in your First National Store.

THE CHILTON CLUB WAS AS GAY AS A TRINITY CHURCH wedding yesterday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jackson Holmes presented their niece, Miss Mary Rosey Freeman and Miss Margaretta Beman Erikson, at a tea with dancing, Aristocratic Boston "from the cradle to the grave" poured out, to meet the young debutantes and the quiet old rooms of the club echoed with life and laughter.

Mrs. Holmes received with her niece in a handsome black velvet gown. The two buds were frocked in crimson and in blue, quite appropriate for the season, Mary in sapphire and Margaretta in the red. Over a thousand of our oldest families arrived to extend felicitations to these prominent and popular maidens.

Among the throng we noticed MRS. DAVID CHEEVER, Mrs. Curtis Guild, regal and beautiful, escorted by a handsome beau. She looked every inch a queen in a Russian sable toque with upstanding aigrettes and sable wrap. We can just imagine that these priceless furs were purchased when she and the Hon. Curtis were ambassadors to the Russian court. Very little REAL sable is worn in Boston. Chattering with her was Mrs. Alvin T. Fuller, who is always one of the best dressed in any assemblage.

Many Leaders Attend Reception
OTHERS NOTED IN THE THROG WHICH CROWDED every room of the club were Mrs. Daniel D'Menecal, Mrs. William T. Councilman, Mrs. Nicholas Greene, Mrs. W. A. Bazley, Mrs. David Evans and daughter, Lydia. We saw Mrs. James Stacey Fay, Mrs. Robert S. Grant, wife of Judge Grant, Mrs. David Cheever and the Misses Cheever, Mrs. Edwin A. Locke and Mrs. McGregor Jenkins.

THE YOUNG GROUP WERE discussing the freshman dance tomorrow night at the Ritz. Mary McLean, a debutante of last year, directed the pointers, assisted by Mrs. J. A. Bigelow, a very pretty girl if she would keep all the time; Leslie Blake, a quiet looking and smartly dressed; Frances Bradley with adorable frinkles; Elsie Elsie Cram, who doesn't look a bit like her picture, she is much prettier and more aristocratic in appearance. Molly Heston, who is in the group and she is a real beauty. We heard that they having her photograph taken by one of our best artists, she was used to pose for them. Her beautiful decorative prints for shop purposes.

ELIZABETH MARSTON is another lovely girl who takes a marvelous picture. Charlotte Randall waited through the crowd like a zephyr and petite Margot Standwood seemed to be having a fine time. She is bouillabaisse and blonde. They were all discussing the dance at the Pudding Club in Cambridge, which will be held AFTER the Harvard-Yale game. This is always a much anticipated event.

WE GOT OUR ANNOUNCEMENT this morning that the Alwell-Draper marriage occurred on Saturday, in St. Louis and that the young couple were on their way to Honolulu. Dr. Alwell-Draper stated that they would receive their friends in Honolulu after the first of the year and he did not doubt one of the beautiful Draper estate will be put in readiness for their arrival.

DURING THE AFTERNOON we dropped in for a moment at the English Speaking Union to greet the new British Consul-General, George R. Peak. Mr. Peak gave an informal talk regarding the present political crisis in England which was very interesting. Miss Phyllis Borne, the well-known English writer, arrived and left early to catch a train. She has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Beale of Milton. Mrs. Beale was present with her talented daughter, Miss Elizabeth, who looked very swank in a leopard coat.

MRS. HERBERT WINDLER and Mrs. George R. Mumford were in the crowd which overhauled the large assembly rooms of the Union. The tea tables were presided over by Mrs. J. A. Low.

MISS MRS. HAMILTON OGDON and Mrs. Richard Salmon. These monthly meetings are always a privilege and are well attended. Mrs. Richard Salmon wife of the British Consul-General and Miss Elizabeth Salmon in the assembly.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE MATTHEWS of London are giving a dance at the Pudding Club and Country Club on Dec. 4 for their debutante daughter.

MISS JANE BANCROFT, debutante daughter of the Hugh Bancrofts of Beacon Hill, with Miss Deborah Hall of Medford, debut daughter of Mr. Isaac Hall, as they appeared in the charming, bright-colored ski costumes they modeled yesterday afternoon and evening at the Florence Crittenton Bazaar, held in the Copple-Plaza Ballroom. Miss Bancroft later showed a riding habit, a most suitable outfit for her.

Maj. Thomas Coulson to Reveal Work of International Spies

Maj. Thomas Coulson of the British Military Intelligence is to give a lecture in the Copple-Plaza ballroom on Friday morning, December 4, under the auspices of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters.

Among the sponsors and subscribers for hosts and other seats, are Mrs. Henry R. Brigham of Cambridge, Mrs. Robert L. De Normandie of Lincoln, Mrs. Alvin T. Fuller, Mrs. Frederick S. Roddett, Mrs. George L. Dow, Mrs. Horatio Parker, Mrs. Field, Mrs. William Healy, Mrs. Arthur O. Rotch, Mrs. Charles Almy, Jr., Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., Mrs. David Heston, Mrs. L. Jerome Johnson, Mrs. John Graham Bronk, Mrs. Howard J. Chittley, Mrs. George A. O. Knut and Mrs. William James.

Special interest has been aroused over the subject of Maj. Coulson's lecture, as the disclosure of his work among spies, especially women, has never been made known in this way in Boston before. It is said that light on the way these women spies formed misundestanding and quarrels between nations as those who have read his delectful story "Mata Hari" will know.

He might not be alive, even to tell about the "Tiger Lily" or "The Blue Devil of Germany" as he was called, but he is not in the habit of going to a hotel room, removed his cartridges from his revolver while she was alone in a drunken sleep. Don't that sound pretty exciting—and DON'T you want to hear him?

The "Blue Devil" was highly ranked in the German Intelligence Service, and was as ruthless as he was daring. It was her ingenuity that landed an entirely new group of spies in England, and she was the only English as soon as war was declared. Nothing more thrilling or romantic will be found in the annals of war history than the way in which the existence of this group was tricked down in London by a Scotland Yard detective.

On, and by the way, a group, or in fact, three groups of women for Maj. Coulson's lecture are being organized, one headed by Mrs. C. Leslie Giers of Cambridge, one by Mrs. Robert Perry and the third by Mrs. E. J. Baird. The groups will be made up of the young married set, older matrons, and Junior League members.

Play Tomorrow for Juniors

Quality Street will be put on tomorrow morning by the National Junior Theatre, at the Plymouth. Instead of "A Kiss for Cinderella" as was on the program.

This will be the second production brought here by that company, and though many will feel this week that it will make the day too crowded to take in the play, the morning and evening have come for lunch and to get to the GAME.

Mrs. George Von L. Meyer, chairman of the executive committee of the Lynch Hospital, which will benefit by the block of seats taken for them, assures us that the last curtain will have come down by five 12.30.

"Quality Street" was not to have been given until January, but the complicated emergency used in both "A Kiss for Cinderella" and "The House Beautiful," being presented at the Plymouth also, make things difficult backstage.

Columbus Associates to Meet at Reunion
The 40th anniversary of the Columbus Associates, the oldest Italian social club in Boston, will be celebrated tonight at a reunion at the Plymouth also, make things difficult backstage.

Many Italian-Americans will attend.

ROCHESTER, BY 6-HOUR DAY, MAKES JOBS

Some industrialists only "talk prosperity." But the real industrial leaders are getting together, and by concerted action are making prosperity a fact for their communities. The six-hour working day is usually a part of their plan.

This is the fifteenth of a series of studies of the six-hour day, advocated by William Randolph Hearst, and kindred methods of spreading and guaranteeing work.

By LAURA VITRAY

Fourteen progressive Rochester N. Y. concerns have gone on the warpath, and have virtually succeeded in routing depression and unemployment out of the town.

They have introduced employer co-operation as the first step in guaranteeing work and a happy winter to 30,000 men and women. And they have invited all other Rochester firms to get in step with them.

The weapons these pioneering industrialists are using to restore prosperity in their community are the six-hour day of the five-day week, combined with a plan for pooling and exchanging of semi-skilled help to avoid layoffs, and company reserves to take care of payments to workers if work becomes slack.

The 14 co-operating Rochester factories are not engaged in a single line of manufacture. They represent the widest diversity of industries.

WOULD SPREAD IDEA

They are alike only in this: that they all employ large forces of semi-skilled laborers. They have pledged themselves to get together to assure these workers a job.

The concerns banded together to "spread work" in Rochester are not operating as an exclusive clique. Any firm can join them. . . no matter what it makes or what it sells, or whether its payroll is large or small.

For the 14 pioneers of Rochester want to "spread the idea of spreading work."

The firms that stand as "champion members" of the Rochester social experiment . . . in operation long enough now to be labeled successful . . . are the Eastman Kodak Company, the Birminghams Telephone Manufacturing Co., Bauhaus & Lomb Optical Co., Cochran Bros. Co., Consolidated Machine Tool Corp., Davenport Machine Tool Corp., Gleason Works, Pfauter Co., Taylor Instrument Co., Todd Co., Vogt Manufacturing Corp., Yawman & Ebbels Co., . . . and one public utility, the Rochester Telephone Corp.

First, these companies agreed to reduce working hours in order to distribute the available work among the entire employed group. Most are now operating on either a five-day week or a six-hour day.

CREATE WAGE FUND

Second, they agreed to interchange their employees whenever necessary and possible, as a means of preventing layoffs.

Third, they pledged themselves to maintain a reserve fund to serve funds out of which to pay weekly wages or benefits to unemployed employees for whom they could find no employment either in their own or one of the co-operating plants.

The third part of the plan is the latest and goes into actual operation from Jan. 1, 1932. After that date, employees of these companies

MRS. HEARST IS HONORED

MAYOR WALKER MRS. HEARST

Three thousand folk gathered in New York to honor Mrs. William Randolph Hearst in appreciation of her outstanding welfare work. The banquet marked the 10th anniversary of her founding of the New York Free Milk Fund for Babies.

With a year or more of service, who regularly receive less than $50 a week, will be paid 10 per cent of their average wages, or not exceeding $2.50 a week, if laid off for a period of more than two weeks.

The length of time during which the companies obligate themselves to continue such payments depends on the length of service, but is considered sufficient to tide an employee over any layoff until he finds work in one of the co-operating plants.

To build up the necessary reserves to meet this obligation, each company has put aside for the past year a sum equal to two per cent of its payroll.

Already, one American city has followed Rochester's good example. It is Fond du Lac, Wis. They call it the "Fond du Lac Sixty Employment Plan" out there. Five companies agreed to it with interplant transfers and special financial incentives to managers to abolish unemployment.

Tomorrow we will tell of some other large companies who have wiped out this winter's dread of unemployment by guarantees.

Wilkins' Arctic Ship Sent to the Bottom

Bergen, Norway, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Polar submarine Nautilus, in which the expedition of Sir Robert Wilkins went to the Arctic last summer, was sunk off the coast here today.

An attempt to sink the craft two weeks ago failed because the tow lines of attending tug broke during stormy weather.

29,127 Voters in Quincy

A total of 29,127 persons will be eligible to vote Dec. 8, the Quincy board of registrars announced today.

ERLANGER WED 218 IN GRANGE 50 YEARS

New York, Nov. 20 (INS)—"I married her under the eyes of God in Atlantic City when I gave her that ring."

In these words, it was testified before Scroggins O'Brien, the late Abraham L. Erlanger referred to Charlotte Fixel, former stage beauty, whom suit to establish herself as Erlanger's common-law wife was "caused today."

John Dillon, former general manager of the theatrical magnate, in the statement in support of Alice Fixel's claims to dowry rights in the $75,000 estate of the producer. He also told how much in love the couple appeared to be.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20 (AP)—"Golden Road" certificates were bestowed upon 218 members of the National Grange today as an honor for continuous membership of 50 years or more in the organization.

The certificates were granted in a ceremony unique in the history of the organization. Recipients who were not present at the convention will get their certificates through the state master.

These ten persons from Massachusetts received the certificates: Alfred D. Clifford, Phillipston; Walter White, Blandville; Mrs. O. E. Adams, Elliptic Moore, Caroline E. Geeser, Mrs. Sarah E. Collins, Lenna H. Bryant and Mrs. Fannie Bond, all of Worcester.

MONKEYS ARE FOUND SUBJECT TO PARALYSIS

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Rockefeller Institute for medical Research made public today the discovery of a method for giving infantile paralysis to monkeys, which have hitherto resisted taking the disease.

The discovery gives medicine increased means of experimenting through developed remedies. It is described in Science, the official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, by Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the institute.

HAVE BEEN IMMUNE

In the past, he stated, it has been possible to give monkeys only part of the human strain of virulent paralytic. One of the main difficulties has been an unusual and immunity of many monkeys to a second inoculation after the first one from human disease had been successful.

The immunity defeated experiments. In search for some method to cause the 1931 human virus to "take," it was remembered at the institute that several years ago Flexner and Ames had discovered that in weakened inoculations, not of human but of monkey paralytic virus, would cause the monkey form of the disease—that is, a dose too weak to cause the paralytic was effective when repeated only once.

MUST FINISH TESTS

This method of two inoculations was tried with the 1931 human virus. In most cases this succeeded, although Dr. Flexner said "it is not invariable." To determine whether the inoculation method affords to establish durability in monkeys many strains of human poliomyelitis virus has yet to be completed. It remains also to be seen whether highly potent virus strains adapted to monkeys can be readily secured in this manner.

BRITAIN ENACTS 'DUMPING' BAN

London, Nov. 20 (AP)—The government's anti-dumping bill received royal assent and became a part of the law of the land.

It gives the Board of Trade power to impose a duty up to 100 per cent on certain classes of manufacturers and partially manufactured imports and, if the government takes advantage of its full power it may be hard on certain American imports.

20 FIRE SINKS LINER BERMUDA

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Purcell liner Bermuda, damaged by fire last night, was at her pier in Hamilton Bermuda, was refloated to a harbor tug, early today by another fire, which raked her from bow to stern.

The vessel was here undergoing reconstruction. The fire began with a series of explosions in a hold where several acetylene cylinders were stored.

The afternoon the ship was resting on the bottom and it appeared doubtful if it could be rebuilt.

British Dominions Equality Bill Moved

London, Nov. 20 (INS)—Second reading of the Westinghouse bill substituting free and equal operation between England and the dominions for supremacy of the British Parliament, was moved in the House of Commons today.

J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, said: "This is the most important and far-reaching bill presented to the House in several generations." Thomas said, "It marks the end of the long road which has led beginning when parliamentary institutions were established in the overseas dominions, three centuries ago."

THIS IS THE

A GRIPE BY MAIL, AND WHAT IT TAKES TO BE A TEACHER

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

"DEAR MR. ROGERS: At the chance of being called a crank, knowing fully a newspaperman's opinion of one who writes letters to a paper I took on the New York Journal and the New York Post, I am writing to you after reading your column on education in last week's paper to tell you how thoroughly I am disgusted with the whole field of education. If ever there is a profession—I am thinking of school superintendents and preparatory school masters—wherein stupidity is so palpable, prejudice so obvious, and ability so ignored, teaching is that profession. Ability and background are a handicap. You are suspected if you are interesting and forthright. You are not wanted unless you are tractable, colorless, and dull, which means that you must be a member of the third sex commonly known among female school teachers as male teachers.

"Dullards, bores, and men who have stopped living spiritually are hired, while teachers with ability are passed up. I know, for I passed up newspaper work, in response to some sort of idealism, to enter teaching, and from my experience as a teacher for one year, from meeting other teachers, I have come to these sneering conclusions.

"Teaching Course, a Joke"

"Here I am loafing. I can't even get a job teaching grammar school. After two years on New York newspapers, I returned to my final year at a college, where I majored in English, edited magazines, wrote verse and stories, and got my A. B. in 1930. I never took a course in education, which handicapped me in getting a job. I was told I needed courses in education, although every teacher I met told me that such courses as they had taken were a waste of time—a joke.

"The best I could do was to get a year's work in a small preparatory school to take care of the last-minute rush in enrollment. This year the school lost half its enrollment and hence I wasn't needed.

"I like to teach and communicate interesting, beautiful things. I enjoy poetry, which many English teachers in high school and preparatory school do not. I spend time during the summer months and school vacations in reading in my field. I buy books. I spend money to better my own equipment and to further my knowledge.

"I come from a good old-fashioned small college. I belong to the right sort of fraternity. I have manners, the right labels, yet I cannot get a job teaching. I am not interested in the classroom—in politics or in any religious sect. I bend backwards trying to be judicious and liberal. Upon meditation I become choleric and untractable. Please don't write any more columns on education. I burn inwardly every time I see or hear the word.

Choleric, yes. Inarticulate, no! One in a while a really complete example of a gripe arrives through the mail, which, although so bad-tempered as to be manifestly unjust, does represent pretty well what one hears a great many people saying. This letter sums up a good many common complaints.

"The System," Not the Subject, His Woe

Of course, the writer is not talking about education. Education is a different problem. He is talking about "the system." He despises the system and yet he gripes because he can't get into it. Perfectly natural, perfectly inconsistent and human.

Any great organization must depend on the average man. Not merely on the average man, but the average man disciplined, obedient, running to type, the brilliant exception, unless he can be harnessed, will disrupt any system. And the loose individualism of our colleges is hardly the best preparation for a life of discipline, routine, repetition and normality such as a life of teaching must be. In an age of considerable disinclination to routine and obedience, it is doubtful whether there is any place in the schools for the exceptions to the rule.

Practically, of course, the trouble is that no school can afford to take a chance on a man who, apparently, took up teaching as an after-thought, a type of "trial" preparation. Even the fact that he has no technical educational training is secondary to that. Most teachers are old-fashioned enough to believe that teaching is a vocation, that one is either called or not called. And they doubt whether the training given by a modern American newspaper is quite the kind they want for the teachers of our children.

The virtues of a young man who likes writing, who loves poetry, and is an idealist, are not necessarily the virtues of a good public school teacher. Such a young man is likely, as in this case, to view with disgust the habits of mind and manner of thought which may very well turn out to be bulwarks of strength in a system that has to deal with thousands of assorted children, of every class, racial origin and social background. The brilliant individualism may very well do the majority of his class considerable damage. For most of the children of our democracy it is entirely possible that the teacher who best represents the common denominator of our society will be able best to find a common denominator for our heterogeneous, anarchic people.

Parrotting Women's Complaint

I certainly do not agree with the gentlemen's strictures about men teachers. He is merely echoing the usual complaint voiced by our women teachers, in which the usual antagonism is added to economic antagonism and our ally American habit of overestimating all feminine qualities. The American man teacher is more useful in many fields than the woman teacher can ever be. And in the teacher's case because he has some of the qualities which makes the writer of this letter despise him, the dependability of the routinized, the freedom from too great an individualism. I do not say that these qualities will turn out leaders of civilization. But that is not to be expected from the public schools. These are admirable qualities for the training of the democracy at large.

It is very easy for a brilliant young man who has not been through the mill to despise the somewhat tired products of years of experience. Obviously if our young man wants to teach, he has got to train himself for teaching. I am no defender of much of the absurdity of modern teacher training. But something of the sort is necessary. Four years of modern college life are not sufficient guarantee. You can't trust the product of such a system to teach adequately at first. A minimum of teacher training is absolutely essential. But on the whole I am inclined to think our young man might be happier on a newspaper.

And if he goes on a newspaper he will find that the rank and file of men there is not so very different from the rank and file of the men in a factory, or in industry, or in banking. Most of them have harnessed their idealisms, made themselves "tractable, colorless, and dull," not merely for the sake of holding their jobs but because that is the human price to be paid for a career, and the representatives are nearly always in it, down upon those qualities by the men who pride themselves on their own exceptional individualism.

Station WEEI Fans to Hear Their Songs Uncensored

DIRECTOR SAYS PURITY CODE IS NOT NEEDED

Charles W. Burton Offers View WEEI Manager Over Move to Pledge Program

Radio listeners tuned to Section WEEI may have their song programs censored, but those who listen in on Station WEEI can have their tunes as they are written, the latter station director, Charles W. Burton, declared today.

Clark, program head of WEEI, who announced yesterday a WEEI song-censoring radio, Director Burton said:

"I have not found it at all necessary during the last several years to institute any campaign of the sort, and believe that it does not contain the promise of a station executive to decide what may be deemed by a listening public."

"Further, I do not believe any noticeably offensive tunes are on the air at present, but of course, Mr. Clark may have good reasons for taking the action he has decided upon."

"Asked if he believed the Clark radio would meet with favor or disfavor among radio listeners, Burton said:

"I can determine until some concrete instance occurs wherein a selection is taken off the air in accordance with the ban."

BLAKE ASSURES MORE SERVICE

Additional service will be provided for veterans in their homes by the United States Veterans Bureau and aid nurses from the Boston office who have been doing "follow up" work are to be absorbed in hospital work, Col. William J. Blake, regional director of the local office declared today.

Col. Blake made public this information in reply to a statement of Capt. George W. Conner of Veterans of Foreign Wars, which he had presented to Massachusetts Congressmen and Senators against the discharge of aid visiting nurses and asked them to use their influence to have the order rescinded in Washington.

"As a matter of fact the aid nurses are to be absorbed in hospital work," said Col. Blake. "They are not to be discharged. Furthermore, as a result of a change in method veterans are to have added service in their homes."

"The work in each town and hamlet is to be taken over and supervised by local physicians. That will mean additional service to veterans in their homes. There has been no thought of curtailing the service being rendered to veterans in their homes."

4 FINED $1050 IN RUM CASES

Four defendants paid $1050 in fines and with five others were placed on probation in federal court cases today.

David "Boss" Green pleaded to quash an indictment charging interference with a federal agent. No date was set for hearing.

Isadore Galtz of Fourth St., Chelsea, was fined $500 and placed on probation for five years after pleading guilty.

James P. Donovan, alias John J. Donahue of Monument St., Charlestown, and Collette Barry of Lawrence were fined $200 each.

William H. Smith was fined $150 as result of a Taunton raid.

JUSTICE WITH A SMELL

Justice was tempered with considerable odor in East Cambridge Court today—the details of the court, although high, not being half as high as the rich, pungent odor therein.

Two cartons of cheese, a very noticeable odor in the court, were the cause of it. The cheese was the property of a man who had been arrested for the same reason.

Wife Divorces Mate Who 'Threw Things' as She Sang Jazz

Love songs and jazz soured her husband when he threw things, a wife of 33 years testified today in Middlesex divorce court.

Mrs. Florida L. Brown, Marlborough, who said she was a former concert singer, related this testimony and won a divorce from Joseph A. Brown.

"When he was unhappy I'd play and sing love songs and then I'd change to jazz songs to calm him down and make him feel better as I could talk things over with him," Mrs. Brown testified.

"When I sang the new jazz songs he became angry and threw things at me."

CITY IS RICHER BY $1,406,634

In the annual exchange of checks today between the State and Boston, in settlement of the fiscal transactions between the two for the year, Boston came out of it richer by $1,406,634.

Civil Collector William M. Morrow, Junior, of the State Treasurer Charles P. Hays, the city's chief for 1934, representing its share of the state's metropolitan district expenses and other assessments on the city.

Hurler then handed City Treasurer Edmund F. Dolan the State check for $446,790, which is Boston's share of the income tax, corporation and bank taxes, and other levies and fees collected.

MRS. EVANS SAYS MRS. DUNSTAN

Mrs. Gladstone Evans, wealthy Brookline and Boston society woman, took the witness stand today in Roxbury's Probate court as a character witness for Mrs. Ruth J. Dunstan, divorced wife of Capt. Edwin V. Dunstan of West Point.

Last June Mrs. Dunstan was granted a divorce and given custody of the two children for 10 months of the year. Both now ask permanent custody of the children.

Mrs. Evans testified that Mrs. Dunstan is occupying part of the Evans house in Wellington (terrace), and that she is a respectable housewife and mother and treats the children well.

Capt. Dunstan is in support of his position, declared that West Point, removed from city life and accompanying hazards, was an ideal place in which to bring up the children.

Edward McLaughlin of Gloucester, who was charged with the murder of a woman, was held for further hearings.

FOUR INJURED IN RACE TO SAVE BRAINTREE GAS VICTIM

AMBULANCE HIT AND UPSET BY QUINCY TRUCK

Braintree Man Overcome by Fumes in a Garage Causes Dash

Four men were injured, one seriously, when a Braintree police ambulance, racing to a victim of gas poisoning, over whom a fireman was working with a pumpmotor, was struck by a truck in Quincy and tipped over.

The injured, all of whom resumed their dash to the hospital in a Quincy police ambulance, are: NOVELLINE, George, Braintree policeman, fractured ribs, cuts and serious head injuries.

COGEN, Philip, watchman in a South Braintree garage, overcome by carbon monoxide gas and shaken up and bruised in the crash.

HENNESSEY, Walter, Hurler, fire lieutenant, minor head injuries. O'Rourke, John J., Braintree patrolman, driver of the wrecked ambulance, cuts on hands and face. PULMOTOR TIPPED ON WAY.

All except Novelline were discharged from the hospital after treatment. COGEN, having recovered quickly from the effects of the gas.

The two Braintree policemen, with the ambulance, and Lieut. Hennessey, with the pumpmotor, responded to an emergency call from the garage where COGEN was employed.

They found him unconscious and, with Hennessey operating the pumpmotor, started to push him to the hospital.

IGNORANT RED LIGHTS. At Water st. and Independence av., Quincy, the traffic lights were against the ambulance, but, with shrieking siren, O'Rourke drove through the light.

The truck, operated by Philip Gacela, 25, of Water st., Quincy, smashed into the speeding ambulance broadside, badly wrecking it and knocking it on its side.

Novelline, the most seriously injured, was riding on the back step and was hurled several feet.

SANTASON DUE HERE NOV. 26

North Pole, Nov. 20.—Santason, the son of Santa Claus, has announced that he will be at the Charles River Basin at 10 o'clock Thanksgiving morning, November 26, for the annual Jordan Marsh Company Santason Parade, held in honor of his arrival.

This will be the third year that Santason has made Jordan Marsh Company his official home while in Boston.

This year Santason will bring with him a special treat for the people in detail the home and surroundings of Santason. It will show Santa Claus' home and the reindeer, Eskimos and the gooses that help make all the fun for Santa Claus. It took 12 months to make the picture, which will be shown at various hotels and schools throughout New England.

BEAUTY IS NOT JUST A GIFT

For every woman who inherits beauty, there are five who own charm and good looks. Without health, there can be little natural beauty. And a serious handicap to health is constipation.

This widespread ailment often causes headaches, irritability, sallow skin, pimples—undermining both health and beauty. Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This delicious cereal provides "bulk," which gently cleans out the wastes. And Vitamin B to tone up the intestinal tract. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce.

Try two tablespoons daily—usually sufficient for most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN supplies iron for the blood. All are made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

RUNAWAY PAIR HOME, HELD

Millie, 18, and her sister, Betty Babsonovitz, 16, who ran away last Friday from their home in Greenwood ave., Swampscott, returned today to submit to arrest as stubborn children on complaint of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Babsonovitz.

Arrested in Lynn district court, they were held in $100 bail each for a hearing Nov. 27.

The girls, who were driven to their home early today in an automobile that immediately disappeared, were reticent about their escapade and would say only that they had been "visiting relatives in New Hampshire."

Warrants are still outstanding for two men alleged to have figured in their disappearance.

Students to Attend Breakfast Sunday

HUNDREDS HELD AT BAY BY DOG

His policemen and 200 other persons, with tenants of a house in West Springfield st., South End, were held at bay by a big police dog that escaped death through the pincushins of a 20-year-old girl.

The dog was finally captured by Chief Inspector Archie McDonald of the Animal Rescue League, who today turned it over to Dr. Herma Deane of the Osgood Animal Hospital, Village st., South End.

The dog appeared first in the vestibule of the house on the first floor.

A telephone call to East Dedham station brought five policemen who joined the route officer in efforts to capture the animal.

Miss Louise Montrose, 20, played against shooting and called the Animal Rescue League.

Dr. Delano said the dog was owned by a West Roxbury family.

CHANGE OF MIND AND LUCKY ERROR GAVE PRIZE TO WOMAN

$13,800 DROPPED INTO LAP BY ACCIDENT

Bought Whole Book of Sweepstakes Tickets and Won One of Two Given to Her

That womanly prerogative—changing her mind, coupled with a very nice error, indeed—dropped approximately $13,800 today into the lap of Miss Agnes Downing, 33, of 18 Greenough ave., Jamaica Plain.

With further reports today from Dublin indicating that seven Greater Boston and three other Massachusetts residents had drawn consolation prizes in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, came information that Miss Downing had won second prize in the Mutual Club drawings on the Newmarket race, Oct. 16.

Two Boston men and a Cambridge woman had held tickets on other startings, according to the word.

In her home today Miss Downing revealed that her win was only because she had changed her mind at the last minute and then had made an error.

TOOK ALL TICKETS

"A book of tickets was sent to me some time ago," Miss Downing said. "I was going to throw it in the fire when I noticed that the tickets—there were 10 in the book—were only $1.50 each."

"I thought, 'Well, I can't go to much, and I filled out all the tickets myself. I was supposed to have two tickets for myself for selling the other eight to myself. When I sent the book to the bank, I sent the tickets back to Ireland. I sent it with them, instead of $1.50."

As a result of this error, the sweepstakes people sent me two more tickets to cover the extra $1.50. I was one of those extra two who won the second prize of $13,800 for it. I have also been notified that because I was the winner of my own lucky ticket, I receive a seller's prize of $500 for my friends. That's about $13,800, isn't it?"

"Well, this prize money isn't so much, is it? I'd rather win $100,000, wouldn't you? I'll use the money in repaying this big house, I guess. It needs some repairs."

WON 5th LAST WEEK

Miss Downing lives with a maid in a big 14-room house just off Center st., Jamaica Plain, at the junction of South st. Her father and mother are dead. It is her first major win, but last week she won $50 in a pool, she said.

The other winners are listed as Julia Gately of Cambridge, and J. Miller and "Katie," both of Boston. All three held tickets on starting horses and their winnings will net them $725.

Those who drew consolation prize tickets in the Irish Sweepstakes drawing are: John Hennaway of North Harvard st., Allston; Angelo Pappas of Easton st., Allston; M. W. Kerrian of Endicott ave., Revere; Bridie Feeney of C. F. Winthrop st., Roxbury; C. F. Wright of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury; Raymond H. Bourque of Whittey st., Lynn; "Baby" of Beale st., Wollaston; A. B. Wallace of Maple st., Springfield; Dana May of Franklin st., Haverhill; and Mrs. C. A. Tucker of Sumner st., Mattabesett.

Further efforts to find the steamer Nantucket, which went aground on Sturgeon Flats, off Edgartown, Tuesday, were made today when a seagoing tug was summoned from New York.

The Nantucket, which had been in service to New Bedford, Wood's Hole, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket, was listing heavily today, and it was feared might be unable to stand the strain of heavy weather.

Girl Art Student Wins Poster Prize

Miss Jessica Grace, student at the Massachusetts School of Art, was today announced as the winner in a poster contest conducted by the Massachusetts Industrial Commission.

Leon M. Lamb, executive secretary of the commission, said the contest was instituted this year to advertise the industries of the Commonwealth.

Miss Downing lives with a maid in a big 14-room house just off Center st., Jamaica Plain, at the junction of South st. Her father and mother are dead. It is her first major win, but last week she won $50 in a pool, she said.

MRS. ELY POURS TATTOOED LADY AT MORGAN TEA HELD IN THEFT

The Rev. George L. Paine of Cambridge, executive secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Greater Boston, spoke today in the chapel of the Morgan Memorial, 10 Shawmut ave., in connection with the Memorial observance of "Goodwill Industries Week."

Invitations, including one from the Greater Boston Council of Churches, were distributed at a tea this afternoon for which 200 invitations were issued.

Mrs. Joseph P. Ely, wife of the Governor, who presided at the tea, assisted by the Misses Paine, and Sally Fitzgerald, Bachelors' League, Grace Madden, Barbara Percival and Evelyn Fitzgerald.

She pleaded guilty to taking of cigarettes, tobacco and cigars, but disclaimed on being detected by Joseph P. Zottoli until Monday.

"There are too many women who, in these cases, the most said, 'I'll wait on this and see if the men are caught.'"

Four times married, three times divorced, an alluring star of the motion picture, she is Gloria Swanson, Lucille Patten, who has known the heart aches of Gloria and has a more intimate knowledge of behind the scenes lives of the movie stars than any other writer, has written a brilliant series of articles on "The Life of Gloria Swanson," which begin next Monday, Nov. 21, in the Boston Evening America.

HARVARD AND YALE ARE EVENLY MATCHED, SAYS CASEY

FANNING

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Another Big Scrap. But Is Wide Open.
Hurricane Harvard. Casey in Corner.

As Fight Fan Sees Tomorrow's Football

Life is getting to be just one durand bout after another... The Harvard-Knight Tumb battle, last night and now Hurricane Harvard is preparing to crawl through the ropes against Battling Eli in the Stadium, tomorrow... Some of the gentry think Battling Eli has been in the stable too long... They say he would be more fit if he hadn't taken last Saturday off and the week before picked on that poor little setup, St. John... Hurricane Harvard has a real battle edge on his fighting blade... The Dartmouth and Holy Cross bouts whetted it to razor sharpness... Battling Eli has a great punch... The New Haven scrapper rang up five touchdowns on Dartmouth, which laid Hurricane Harvard to rest... But Battling Eli is wide open... Georgia had no difficulty socking him in the puss, as Ted Husing might say... And in the sieging match with Dartmouth the batter from the Blue Hills of New Hampshire, hanging on the ropes at 33 to 10 and facing a sure knockout, rallied and battered Battling Eli from rope to rope, gaining a draw... Against Dartmouth, Battling Eli acted punch drunk.

Hurricane Harvard has a great defense... His chin is harder to find than tickets for tomorrow's game... The Crimson Cyclone also is a great ring general... Along Casfieldway Alley they seem to think Hurricane Harvard too smart, knows too much for Battling Eli... They also think Big Mac John has been holding more up his sleeve... They say Hurricane Harvard has been pulling his punches a bit, but will shoot the whole works at Battling Eli... The great Eddie Casey, the best handler Hurricane Harvard has had since Percy Hamilton and who some of the mob say they just as soon have in the corner as the late Knute Rockne, will second the Crimson Cyclone... The gang don't think quite so highly of Mal Stevens.

Casey's scrapper is dead game... He came from behind against Uncle Sam's Whipping Wagon from West Point and hanged out a victory in the last round over Dartmouth... High-Rat John is as cool as a landlady's heart in the punches... He's as steady as a clock when the going gets hot... When Dartmouth started to sock Battling Eli on the hip, as they say in our best sellers, the New Haven Scrapper got the swing... He became as wide open as the old barn door and willing as willy as the old barn gate.

The betting gentry is making Hurricane Harvard a 10-to-8 favorite... Battling Eli's followers will not accept the odds... Any Harvard man offering Battling Eli better than "evens" is in grave danger of being called "proud"... There is nothing about Battling Eli's followers... They're willing to take it where it hurts the most—right in the bankroll... Battling Eli and Hurricane Harvard have been battling for fifty years... Granddad will tell you that when they meet anything can happen... They boot the dope gallery-seat more often than they boot the ball... However, it looks like a great scrap... In this corner, Hurricane Harvard... Over here, Battling Eli... Forty rounds, knock down and drag out, no holds barred... Women and children stand clear of the ropes... Call the cops and ring for the ambulance... May the best man win... Let 'er go—o-o-o-lll!

And there's a great scrap come tomorrow afternoon out in South Bend, too... The Southern California Comet needs the Notre Dame Demon... The Notre Dame Demon hasn't been licked since Hector was a pup... If One-Round St. C. hadn't been spanked by little St. Mary's, Howard Jones' scrapper would look like the best battler that has come out of California since Jim Jeffries... Throw that early season B. C. St. Mary's battle in the ashcan... It garbles the dope... S. C. beat Oregon, 33 to 0; Oregon beat N. Y. U. 14 to 6; N. Y. U. wood off Fordham, whom experts say is the best team in the East, in a scoreless tie... Dempsey had his Turkey... The Notre Dame Demon has his Southern California Comet... The Greeks licked the Trojans... Maybe the Fighting Irish can... Looks as if the both of 'em would have to take it on the button at South Bend, tomorrow... Which is the greatest glutton for punishment?... You guess, we can't... If we only knew we would be loaning Rockefeller money.

And say, fans, while punching the bag on tomorrow's gridiron scraps don't forget the Turkey Day thumpfest between Holy Cross and B. C... They're never failed to give you a run for your money... They'll give you more than a run for your money in the Stadium, next Thursday... And remember, half the receipts of the B. C. H. C. shindig go to Mayor Curley's Unemployment Fund... C'mon, be a regular feller... Come across!... B. C. warms up tomorrow against B. U... The Crusader will sharpen his punch against Loyola... Joe McKenney's leather tenses started last night but has been coming like a house afire... Hurricane Harvard only won by the skin of his teeth over Worcester Wallopers... They're making R. C. favorite... What, Worcester luck Boston!... How'dja get that way!

RAIN PREDICTED FOR ANNUAL H.-Y. CLASH

By BILL GRIMM

According to the latest weather reports, the annual Harvard-Yale game will be played at the Stadium tomorrow afternoon in the rain.

Backing up the official weather report is the opinion of Donald F. Smith, veteran caretaker of the Stadium, who, in his long years of service, has rarely missed calling the turn on the weather.

Early in the week Smith had the playing surface at the Stadium covered with tarps, which will not only keep the field bones dry, but will also prevent the frost which is likely to accompany a predicted drop in temperature.

Several times in the past decade, Harvard and Yale have played under adverse conditions. Two years ago the Crimson and Blue battled in Arctic weather while the stands were crisscrossed with snow and ice.

Pond Red Star
In Sea of Mud
Harvard and Yale played during a storm. In the year previous the same was lower in a sea of mud at the Stadium and, appropriately enough, Turkey Day's present Yale freshman coach, gave the greatest exhibition of playing on such a field and was large responsible for the victory.

The Yale team work out at the Stadium this afternoon. Immediately after the practice, the field was again watered and will remain so until 10 p.m., after which the game will be played.

SEVEN JUMBOS IN FINAL GAME

Seven Jumbo freshmen will play their last college game tomorrow afternoon, when the Tufts eleven attempts to take Mass. State, with such, in Eastern high school, into camp at Amherst.

Romance Cole, veteran end, Ellington, center, Luther Child, who made a berth at and only this year, Capt. Vic Knapman, center, Ed Kennedy, back, Ed Moulton, point tackle, are the men whom Coach Lou Marley will have to play with results next fall.

All the team, except Bryant, Italian, is in first class physical condition for this battle, and bulking up as a substitute, thereby giving the Jumbos their second start with all regular men.

Coach Marley, assisted by Charlie Hingston and Mike Riedorf, graduates of '30, have returned to coach the team.

Purple has been the theme all week, both from center and on corners.

Ed Sullivan Faces Velha at Brockton
Methuen, Feb. 24 Murphy of the Plymouth A. Brockton, has been selected to play at Brockton, Mass., on Nov. 20, at the Brockton Arena.

Sullivan, popular East Walpole, had been with the Brockton team, but was injured by a fall during a game against the Brockton team.

Harvard and Yale Are Evenly Matched--Casey

By Eddie Casey

Harvard Head Coach and All-American Star Eddie Casey will write an exclusive article for the Boston Evening American each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Three football games are outstanding on tomorrow's schedule, which for the most of the country's teams marks the end of the long trail which started early in September. Harvard and Yale are to play at Cambridge and Southern California and Notre Dame at South Bend. Stanford and California will meet on the Pacific Coast.

Here in the East, there will be high interest in the 60th game played between the Crimson and the Blue eleven. Their series started back in 1875 when football was played with 15 men on a side, and through all the years that have intervened since then they have met annually. Seldom in that long stretch of games have the teams been as evenly matched as seems to be the case this year.

Harvard has the better mathematical record of the rivals, and by that I mean that the difference of a point here and there has brought Capt. Barry Wood's team to the eve of the Yale game, undefeated and untied. Wood has been responsible to a great extent for the previous successes of his team. He is a wonderful boy, an exceptional captain, a great passer, a sure drop kicker and to my mind an outstanding quarterback.

Yale has been defeated once, that by Georgia in an early season game. Since then Yale has tied Army and Dartmouth. The team goes to its Harvard game well rested. It has veteran backs, a good line and good line replacements and a flock of good backs. It has taken time for Yale to master its new offense. Undoubtedly it has accomplished much in that direction since its last hard game with Dartmouth three weeks ago. If Mallin, the Yale center, is able to play, both teams will go into the game at full strength. Harvard fortunately has been able to put every man on the varsity squad in the field this week.

It is not for me to predict who will win this game. I know that Harvard expects to meet the strongest team it has faced this year. It expects Yale to be high graded for this game. It should be a wonderfully contested game from start to finish.

The Notre Dame and Southern California game will bring together two of the country's outstanding teams. Notre Dame has been tied by Northwestern but otherwise is undefeated. Southern California in early season was defeated by St. Mary's but since that time defeated Oregon 59-0 and Stanford 19-0. Its hardest midseason game was the close victory it pulled out over a much improved California team.

Notre Dame has lost its good fullback George Melnikovich, which would be something any other coach but a Notre Dame coach probably would worry about. Football history has shown however that Notre Dame has an amazing ability to send well groomed substitutes in for star regulars in such cases. Often times these substitutes play away beyond expectations.

There seems so way in which to compare the teams. My

Golden Jubilee of Harvard-Yale Series Tomorrow
Tomorrow's Harvard-Yale game will be the 60th clash since the series started in 1873. Yale has won 37 games, Harvard 16, and 6 ended in ties.

Harvard piled up the largest winning margin by defeating Yale 19 to 0 in 1915. Since the war, Harvard has won seven of its 10 Yale's 5 while one game ended in a scoreless tie.

Schoolboy Notes

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

There will be plenty of talk about a Salem-Malden game between now and the close of the schoolboy football season. Fans on both sides are doing plenty of arguing.

Right now it doesn't seem as though the teams would meet. If they should it would be one of the best games ever and would put a nice sum of money in the way of charity.

In the meantime Salem and Malden must make preparations for their coming games. Both teams have the possibility of defeat, Malden by Medford on Thanksgiving Day and Salem with Newburyport tomorrow.

ELI SQUAD HOLDS SECRET DRILL AT STADIUM

GRADUATES AT BELMONT GOLF CLUB

Yale's arrival in Cambridge, the Harvard-Yale second varsity game, and the withdrawal of Eddie Casey's Harvard varsity squad to suburban seclusion are the three chief items of interest around Harvard today.

The traditional day before a major sports event is observed at the Harvard-Yale game by the Harvard-Yale varsity squad, who are at the stadium for the final workout before entering the football field with Eddie Casey's undefeated eleven.

And no outsiders will be allowed to see the Yale varsity workout, most of the football faithful will hold forth at the second varsity field, where the Harvard and Yale squads come to grips.

This Harvard-Yale scrub game is always a light note in an otherwise grim weekend. The Harvard scrubs, however, put on what appears to be the Yale varsity attack, while the Eli seconds pin their victory hopes on attack which they fondly believe mimics that of the Harvard varsity.

Second Teams Use Offense of Others

Neither Harvard nor Yale scrubs have an offense of their own, for the chief function of the second varsity eleven is to imitate the opponents of their respective varsity teams.

A year ago, Yale scrubs, using Harvard plays, defeated the Harvard seconds, using Yale plays, were victorious.

Harvard's final announcement on the day Yale came to town was the starting Crimmin eleven today. The lineup included: Nelson and Hagaman, ends; Harvey and Kopack, tackles; Ginnman and Myerson, guards; and Hallowell, center, start in the Harvard forward line. Wood, Crickard, Schereschewsky and White will be the first choice for Crimmin ball carriers.

The Harvard squad leaves Cambridge early today for Belmont for the game. The Harvard-Yale game will be the first of the season.

Yale's plans for the night before the game are being kept secret, but it is believed that the Blue squad will play at a downtown hotel tonight.

The Daily Dozen

MYLES T. McEWENY

Barry Wood and Albie Booth will clash on the gridiron tomorrow. Each will be assisted by 10 other players. In order that the contest can be called the annual Harvard-Yale game.

The Crimmin team will try to do what scientists are called to accomplish this far. Break up the team.

The Harvard-Yale game will be held up as an example of emphasis of football... by anyone who was unable to buy a ticket.

The University of Southern California team, which plays the game tomorrow, will depend largely on Munk to take the Irish.

"Sweet" Munk, they call this Yale backfield star on the Coast.

But he's liable to go sour after the Irish flatten him a few times.

For the first time in 15 years, the public will be offered tickets for the Yale-Crimmin game on Nov. 25. The public will also be offered some choice golf bricks.

A radio station has taken a radical step this weekend to revolutionize sports broadcasting. It has hired to broadcast the Harvard-Yale game. Ralph Brown, who is not only an excellent announcer, but who also knows what football is all about, having been an All-American back at Princeton when the Tigers had a football team.

Gray's broadcast, however, will deprive his listeners of their favorite amusement of trying to guess what kind of a game is being sent over the air. They'll know right away that it's football.

This Finsie may have to play through next season without a manager. Eighty candidates have already applied for the job left vacant by Jesse Kim, and Barney Dreyfus says he will read, carefully every letter sent in.

It just occurred to us that a diplomat is a man who, not knowing just where his seat is at the Harvard-Yale game, wears a crimson and blue tie.

A lobbyist who just read the above statement offers this amendment: A diplomat is a man who attends the Harvard-Yale game carrying two ties, one all crimson, the other all blue, and who puts on the right one when the game is over.

Stadium Game Result Is Tossup, Says Casey

admiration for Notre Dame football, and the ability of Notre Dame teams to pull games out of the fire, prompts the feeling that Hunk Anderson's team will win. On the other hand, Southern California must have an exceptional team. This is one game where those who have not seen each of the teams in action are stabbing vainly in the dark when they predict a winner.

Out on the coast that Stanford-California game looms as one of the best of the year. Stanford has been beaten only by Southern California. California, coached by Bill Ingram, and schooled from the beginning of the season in sound fundamentals, has made rapid progress. It is likely that this game will be a close one. The teams seem to be well matched and if Pop Warner hasn't something up his sleeve, Stanford probably will have trouble pulling it out.

Aside from these games, there are other scattered contests which have tremendous sectional interest. Tulane, which has Tennessee, ranked as representative of the best of southern football will play Sewanee and does not expect to have much difficulty maintaining its perfect record. Georgia, which was undefeated until it struck Tulane a week ago will play Alabama Poly and should swing back on to the victory path.

The Southern Methodist team which is undefeated in the Southwest section comes north to meet Navy, hopeful of avenging the defeat Tulsa suffered on its trip north to play Harvard. Navy has not been as strong as in some recent seasons and Southern Methodist may repeat its victory of a year ago.

In the western conference Michigan plays Minnesota, Indiana meets Purdue and Chicago faces Wisconsin. Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin were the winners a year ago. The Michigan-Minnesota game probably will be a close one. Michigan after an uncertain start has become a defensive power in recent games. In fact in its last four starts against Illinois, Princeton, Indiana and Michigan State it has not been scored upon. Minnesota defeated Wisconsin 14-0 and lost to Northwestern 32-14 after picking up a 14-0 lead.

Here in the east there are likely to be few upsets. Fordham should win from Bucknell. Holy Cross from Loyola. Boston College from Boston University, and Brown from New Hampshire though Bill Cowell's team annually have a habit of bothering the bear and a year ago won 7-0. Lafayette which has had only 19 points scored against it looks too strong for Lehigh.

Another exclusive article on football by Eddie Casey will appear in the sports pages of the Boston Evening American on Monday.

B. C. FACES B. U. TOMORROW

Boston College will hold its last practice session of the year at the Hopkinton stadium. Tomorrow the Eagles engage with Boston University at Fenway Park in the final preparatory game to their Thanksgiving Day charity game with Holy Cross in the stadium.

Boston College has been offered the use of the stadium on the first three days of next week by the Harvard Athletic Association. The Eagles are certain to avail themselves of this courtesy on Tuesday and Wednesday, but Coach McKenney has not yet decided whether or not he will work out the players on Monday.

With only three days to go before the first game it seems that McKenney will have a light workout on Monday and then will taper off with subsequent workouts in the stadium, emphasizing his defense against the Holy Cross play.

The Maroon and Gold team continues to lead secret practice and it is quite apparent that the B. C. coaches intend that no news of the new Eagle attack shall leak out before the B. C. team shows it for the first time in the stadium.

There seems little likelihood that the football squad will leave town before the day before the game as has been the custom for the past few years. The feeling is that the team needs the time available to get into shape and hunker next morning about some recent would be only wastes.

Coach McKenney announced the return of Eddie Gallagher to the left end position on the varsity. Gallagher received a severe shoulder bruise in the Centre game which had threatened to put him out for the rest of the season.

On the shoulders of Phil Johnston who is in the best condition of his career, rests Boston University's chance in its first game of the year against Boston College tomorrow at Fenway Park.

Phil, after four years of brilliant work with guidance from a coach who made desperate attempts to wind up his grid career at Boston University in a blaze of glory. Phil has a peculiar job which makes it difficult for the opposition to bring him down. He is never clearly tackled.

Rain Is Predicted for Harvard-Yale Game

for their game in the Stadium tomorrow.

And these game football students and captains are ready to stage the greatest duel of their college careers.

Only two teams have been able to stop him, Georgia and Harvard due to the fact that Yale played "law" early in the season. Booth was not at his best when he faced the "Crackers," and the responsibility for his failure to shine against Harvard rests entirely with the Yale coaches.

Albie Booth is a great athlete despite his lack of weight and diminutive stature. Through no fault of his own he has been hindered in the Yale coaches and the underdog spirit.

Apparently, Yale did not cotton to the idea of a New Haven boy hogging the limelight, for as soon as Albie started to become famous through his gridiron exploits, the coaching staff began to manumbrantly him to such an extent that the football public has been led to believe that he was a "poney."

The underdog spirit, however, when Albie was tackled viciously, they turned when he was caught up to any extent after going out of bounds and their protest, however, they thought he was being manumbrantly.

Albie is Capable of Spirited Defense

Despite the fact that he has never been able to deliver a hard blow, Albie Booth is a tough brawler and a dangerous one. Any conditions he is capable of taking care of himself. He can and will, take all the punishment any opponent can deal out.

And, he is also capable of looking out for himself when, in his opinion, any of his opponents overstep their bounds. Harvard, Army and Dartmouth have tried to rough up Albie, but he has never been hurt.

Harvard Wood has been an opponent for Harvard. After Charlie Dwyer had scored touchdowns in the Harvard-Yale freshman game three years ago, New Haven Wood kicked the goal which was the Crimmin's one-point advantage.

MICHELANGELO TEAM TIED

The Michelangelo and Donald Mickey school soccer squads have tied to a 1-0 tie in the feature contest of the Boston intercollegiate school soccer league at North End Park.

The Theodore Roosevelt school, leaders in the Southern division, maintained its undefeated record by trimming the Washington team 2 to 0.

For Bill Gorman, later, blocked Albie Booth's try for the extra point, which would have tied up the contest.

During their sophomore years Barry Wood and Albie Booth became nationally famous Wood and Army with a sensational pass, while Harding and Knickerbocker in the yard with an avalanche of passes, while Booth almost single-handedly crushed Army, Brown and Maryland.

Due to injuries incurred during the Princeton game, Booth did not start against Harvard two years ago. But, after Tom McLennan had plotted the Eli almost the length of the stadium, the Yale coaching staff became pensive and ordered him into the game to try for a goal from the field.

As it was a bitter-ry old day, Booth had wrapped himself up in numerous swaths of bandages to warm up. Albie was sent in to relieve McLennan, and as it was a first Harvard game, he was so excited that he forgot to remove the bandages, thereby leaving a most open target to the ridicule of the Harvard students. Quite naturally, he missed the goal.

Although Albie was pretty much bottled up in this game, he did manage to have a pass to "Hot" Fly for the lone Yale score, and then late in the contest, Booth was sent in to give Yale a victory when Bill Zieher managed to catch him by the collar of his jersey and prevent a probable touchdown.

If Albie should be fortunate enough to have one of those days as he had against Dartmouth, three weeks ago or Army, Brown and Maryland a year ago, it will be just too bad for Harvard.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

Ernie Schaaf's next bout will be against Young Strubling at the Chicago Stadium on December 3. The distance of this contest will be 10 rounds.

Johnny Buckley, Schaaf's manager, favored a 15-round match with Strubling in New York. The Georgian, however, would not have any part of Broadway. He said that of his best has been in Chicago. It was in Chicago that he knocked out Otto Von Porh. Schaaf is also under contract to fight Johnny Rizzo for Ed Brien Cleveland News Christmas Fund on December 8.

Washburn Tiger believes in keeping it tight.

Now for the Harvard-Yale football game. I am still looking for a pair of tickets on the 40-yard line. And I'll probably be in the same position at game time.

Heard DeGane took a boat to France when it came time for him to sign for a return bout with Jim Browning. Which proves that even a wrestling champion can take a splash of temperament.

I once thought Max Schmeling was the only champion who ran for his life. But after that Gus Sonnenberg, Harry Max took a boat to France a year ago last year rather than meet Jack Sharkey in a return bout. He also grabbed a boat for his last fight with Primo Carnera.

Alie McGinnis was in and asked to be put in the line for the fight. McGinnis is going to battle Harry Brown in a return bout at the Arena on Thanksgiving Night.

Sonny hasn't got a title, but he has a few more. There is too much of the old kick into the box office. Which, which counts, according to the dear old promoters.

The crowd in time for the football game tomorrow has already started to make whoopee. Let 'em have their fun. There is too much talk of depression anyway. Rye is a little bit into it.

And the return of beer would give a lot of folks jobs and your Uncle Sam some needed revenue.

All of which hasn't got anything to do with sports, but I never heard of the crowd demanding that a speaker be tossed out when he was demanding that the brewers be opened up.

CATHOLIC GRID TITLE TITAN

The question of football supremacy in the Catholic High School League of Greater Boston will be settled at Paul Revere Park, tomorrow afternoon by the clash between the teams of St. Charles, St. Francis, and St. Charles High, Waltham.

The teams at present are tied for first place in the league with four wins and one tie. St. Charles has been scored on in any league title.

Both have defeated the same opponent by a score of 14-0. St. Charles has the edge in the total points scored. These teams seem evenly matched for the championship meeting. Immature line is the heavier of the two while St. Charles' backfield slightly outweighs its opponents.

In a bout at left half, St. Charles has the high score in the Catholic High School League, while Corrier of Immaculate is close on his heels. To date Boutreau has scored 35 points while Corrier has a total of 31.

MORTON DOWNEY ON VACATION

Famous Tenor
California
Bound

By M. F. T.

He who so pathetically pines for moonlight of the Carolina brand, vocally imploring that some heavenly symbol of romance to keep shining on his beach waters, has apparently been longing to sing "California Here I Come." Tonight finds Morton Downey headed for the West Coast, accompanied by his "maisons," Barbara Bennett.

Connie Bennett will not relinquish the popular tenor's going away, while he is being termed a vacation. Turning his broad back on CBS microphones, he forsakes the adulated spot (8:45) he has been filling six nights a week, to enter upon what he feels is a sorry needed rest.

Tommy Wain said "All is Well" again last night, despite Downey's absence. He also announced the Round Towners quartet would replace Morton's ministry tonight. Maybe a quarter-hour sponsors' fare if one singer will clear four times as much.

Arthur (Street Singer) Tracy topped high among the expected authenticists. "Numerous 'day horses' appear to be doing fairly broadcasting breaks lately.

and on second thought, arranging (with words and music) an open forum has all the earmarks of an idea that might well be developed into a worthwhile, non-commercial feature.

ENGLISH GROUP TO HUNT FOR TREASURE

Malcolm Campbell to Head Expedition to Cocos Island After Kidd's Gold

By RANDOLPH CHURCHILL
Copyright, 1931, by The Evening American, Inc.
London, Nov. 20.—The legendary $60,000,000 treasure said to have been buried by Capt. Kidd on Cocos Island, 400 miles west of Panama in the Pacific, will be sought in three months by a formidable expedition being organized by four Englishmen and one American.

The treasure hunters are Sir Malcolm Campbell, noted auto racing driver; Lee Guinness; John De Forest, the young golfer; E. D. Allen, a member of Sir Oswald Mosley's new party, and Stewart Schiffel, 21-year-old American student and golfer at Oxford University. Schiffel is an intimate friend of the Prince of Wales.

The five have obtained the "Cocos Island treasure trove" concession from the Costa Rican government in exchange for 25 per cent of the gross profits. The Costa Rican will provide the expedition with an army captain and nine soldiers as guards, the government insisting on armed force since all previous searches for Capt. Kidd's treasure have been attended by fighting.

Rotating Programs Planned by Coulton

Emile Coulton, Jr., manager of Seaglade, the nautical resort in the Hotel Westminster, and his musical director, Mike Albert, are back from New York after completing extensive plans for the entertainment program at Seaglade.

Mr. Coulton was youngest manager at the Hotel Men's Convention and his successful operation of Seaglade has a great many favorable comments.

He believes hotel dinner dance entertainment will eventually rotate on a weekly or twice a month basis between the large hotels in the East. If his present plans go through it is expected that about a dozen hotels will consolidate on the circuit. Then patrons of Seaglade will have an opportunity to hear orchestras from the other large cities and Mike Albert's orchestra will also visit the other circuit.

SALLIES PASS $100,000 MARK

More than $8000 ahead of last year's figures, the $100,000 mark in the Salvation Army Greater Boston appeal has been passed, it was announced today. More than 50 team captains, gathered at a luncheon, assured officials of the Army that an additional sum of $30,000 was pending and that plans were under way to raise $20,000 more to place the drive over the top.

Philip R. Allen, chairman of the Greater Boston advisory board, declared that the drive figures showed that hard times were not as bad as people with a pessimistic frame of mind would have one think.

State Treasurer Hurley for the state employees' group has presented a check which brought the total of this group up to more than three times the amount made last year.

The work of the women's committee, headed by Mrs. George R. Fearing, prominent Boston society woman, has raised the sum of $24,633.2, with a promise of more to come.

CALLS ON BEBE, ARRESTED

San Francisco, Nov. 20 (AP)—A man who said his name was Guy Lawyer was arrested as he attempted to force his way to the hotel apartments where Bebe Daniels, stage and screen actress, is staying.

Police said he was a shell-shocked and crippled war veteran. He told them he was a song writer and desired to interview Miss Daniels in his work.

Miss Daniels said Lawyer had annoyed her for more than a year and that he had been arrested once before at her request.

Pure food, pure milk, pure water—in all the things you eat or drink, you want absolute purity.

Purity counts in cigarettes, too

Making cigarettes as pure as they can be made is our business. And it's your business, too—because you smoke them.

All the materials that go into the making of CHESTERFIELD cigarettes are tested again and again by expert research chemists to see that they are absolutely clean and pure. Just like the things you eat or drink.

The tobacco is pure. The right kind—mild, sweet and ripe! Handled throughout by the most modern machinery.

The paper is pure. Clean. White. The best cigarette paper that money can buy.

There is cleanliness in every step of CHESTERFIELD's manufacture. Old-fashioned methods have been discarded, and CHESTERFIELDS are made and packed in modern sanitary factories where even the air is washed, and changed every four-and-one-half minutes.

Every day more men and women are changing to CHESTERFIELD. And changing for good! Four big reasons clinch the choice: Milder—Taste Better—Pure—Satisfy.

TIM TYLER'S FLYING LUCK

A Struggle for Possession

By Lym Young

Metropolitan opera volunteers, scheduled to appear in concert at Worcester, Mass., lay down for a nap and did not awaken until 1 p. m. When she woke up the audience had gone. Turn about is fair play.

It would be a swell idea sometimes for a concert singer to just come out and rustle programs and cough at the audience.

... Milestones on the path to civilization—

LOS ANGELES—Investigating drunkenness at the county poor farm, officers found that a government operative took inmates to bootlegging establishments, allowed them to keep the liquor purchased and then collected $25 for reporting the place to Federal agents.

Cash that guys want outside in. Don't spend more than a dollar here.

News Item—"Reliance has contrived a system of flashing electric currents through idle muscles which makes it possible to exercise while lying in bed."

For years I've searched my weary head
For ways to get me out of bed
In time to work, in time to play,
In time to eat three meals a day,
Or time to go to bed again.
But always I have sought in vain.
People may shout and clocks may ring,
At sleep I still will take my fling.
The pangs of hunger, even they
Will seldom drive me from the bay.
But science, blessed science, now
Has solved my problem grave,
And hush!

For out of bed, I know I'd rise
To get away from exercise.

It Is to Smile! The Result of Grandi's Visit

The visit of Italy's foreign minister, Signor Grandi, is very agreeable to us. He is a man of gracious personality, and he speaks for Italy—a country regarded by all Americans with cordial liking and admiration.

His reception in Washington is in our best manner.

The actual net result of his visit we shall probably NOT BE TOLD.

Again, as in the visits of Prime Minister MacDonald of England and the Premier of France, M. Laval, we are obliged to seek for light in stray remarks and allusions in the current dispatches from Washington.

From these it appears that the only avowed purpose of our distinguished guest is to discuss next year's disarmament conference at Geneva.

But out of the murk one thing emerges—clear and specific.

Italy—surprising to relate—FINDS HERSELF IN ENTIRE AGREEMENT WITH OUR OTHER EUROPEAN DEBTORS. ON THE BROAD PRINCIPLE THAT THEIR DEBTS SHOULD BE REMITTED OR GREATLY REDUCED.

To make this possible our debtors have managed to reach another agreement.

They will forego a portion of their very dubious claims against Germany for reparations, if that is a condition to the CANCELLATION OF THEIR DEBTS TO US.

Amid so much discord as exists in Europe, agreement on any subject has an element of cheer.

The Hoover-Stimson diplomacy seems to be gaining confidence in itself.

It will be remembered what strong ground the administration took in its dealing with M. Laval of France. We absolutely INSISTED that we would NOT EXTEND the moratorium UNLESS SOMEBODY ASKED US TO DO SO.

And, as to a reduction of reparations, we sternly insisted that we would not make the first move, no matter how pressed or tempted. The "initiative" would have to come from Germany itself.

Grim as these conditions must have seemed to M. Laval, he bore up well under them, and reports, which reach us since his return to France, show that he is co-operating earnestly with Secretary Stimson in the effort to "induce" Germany to request the remission of her war obligations.

All this is rather reminiscent of Artemus Ward's humorous description of his personal encounter with an angry enemy.

"I inserted my nose securely between his teeth," said Ward, "and absolutely refused to remove it."

"The sky is the limit," exclaims Mr. Stimson, referring to the scope of his conversations with Signor Grandi.

Our secretary of state will find that THE SKY HAS BEEN NOT ONLY THE LIMIT, BUT THE REGION of his discussions with the American people get a chance to speak their minds on debt cancellation and all the hugger-mugger of "moratoriums," "revision" and "reconsideration"—only intended to pave the way for the BETRAYAL OF THE AMERICAN TAXPAYER.

And had a lot of fun."
"Yes," said the mother, "but today you're ill
And must be very still."

"And I had pie at dinner-time," replied
The fretful little lad.
"Yes," said the mother, "Come, be satisfied!
A happy time you had.
But you are very feverish today
And can't get up to play."

"I don't see why I have to sit in bed.
I want to play some more,
And I want lots of sugar on my bread,
Just like the day before."
"Come," said the mother, "do not whimper so Because your good times go."

How like our little boys are we who whine
When trouble finds our door.
Thinking that every day the sun should shine
And wanting more and more.
Needing the mother still to say: "Be glad
For the joy you've had."

The Fox, the Bear and the Geese

Barred from colonizing the North American Pacific coast, Japan has looked around and decided that Manchuria offers just the proper solution for her difficulties. She needs room for expansion for her millions of people, and that means that she needs Manchuria and WILL TAKE Manchuria.

"Told reports," writes Arthur Brisbane in "Today," "that Japan is 'looming hope of averting a clash,' which is like a fox in the pink of condition saying, 'I am afraid I shall have to bite those fat geese after all.'"

The Russian Bear shows considerable interest in the scene. Bears, like foxes, relish nice fat geese.

The Moratorium Minstrels

We like the song in the lower RIGHT hand corner; that is the TUNE. The words are ominous.

In the lower LEFT hand corner you see a game that hu been going on since the Armistice, and some time before.

Marked cards, mirrors, moratoria (we suppose that is the plural for moratorium), currency changes, anything that will change an honest debt into no debt at all, is welcome. Well, the world is changing, and, we fear, not for the better.

New York Day by Day :- By O. O. McIntyre

Thoughts While Strolling
NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Thoughts while strolling: That hard-boiled West 47th street block where drunk once tossed an inoffensive waiter out the seventh story window just for a laugh. Mortimer Downey grows steadily in popularity. The fun a lot of us could have had with his voice back in the barber shop chort days.

Cole Porter, a Peru, Ind., boy who made good in the city. Those right-collared Broadway lads who draw: "L. Moe, how are you, boy?" Frank McIntyre and his winter derby. Twenty-five cent vaudeville houses again. Jed Harris not doing so well this season. But not so bad. A sort of gloom about the Leda and Franks these days. Noel Schiffrin, the famous retriever of stolen jewels. Flabby Bowditch and his wife. Twenty-five cent vaudeville houses again. Jed Harris not doing so well this season. But not so bad. In a sandwich sanctuary the other night I was interested in a conversation in an adjoining booth. They were discussing a song writer carried off to a hospital that late afternoon.

He's a taxicab slobberer anyway! Every fellow I know called Paul is dapper and celebrity mad. No many current debauches could make the Folies, or Mininsky's, either for that matter. They run to mule beauty this season—all teeth. Claim Wallace Fries, another writer, "Snow Birds" shivering in side streets. Awaiting dog rumen. Hunched up come snippers in ornate luncheas. Awaiting the morning paper "Help Wanted" column. Has anyone figured out yet why they call that music play "The Cat and the Fiddle"? Steve Hangan and his beautiful bride.

Harry Hirsfeld's tails of the Irishman who asked for a steak in a Keating Forty cake and was brought a flat mignon. Gaining at it, he sneered to the waiter: "I will have more steak than that."

Suits for plagiarism among literary folk have had some odd twists. Sooner or later every writer is accused in one way or other. There would be possibly more of it save emotions and themes are not copyrightable and the law holds similarities are not always plagiarism. Perhaps the outstanding case of the last few years was Mrs. Sinclair Lewis' charge that Theodore Dreiser plagiarized from her book on Russia.

Other outstanding cases: Eugene O'Neill defeated George Lewis in her claim to stole "Strange Interlude" from her; Albert Einstein was charged with stealing his "Unified Field" theory; H. G. Wells was never guilty of lifting his "Outlines of History" from none other than Jules Verne; Charles D. DeMille and Jean MacPherson have been sued six times and never found guilty of plagiarizing; Zane Grey was accused and acquitted of stealing his book, "The Thunder Herd"; Bernard Shaw admitted taking another's matter in "Candida"; "Copies of the Bible" was found not guilty; Charlie Chaplin won in America and lost in Germany, and Edmund Rostand was convicted in Illinois and not in New York.

Anonymous purple tinted note: "You didn't know, but sitting next to you in a Waldorf waiting room last Monday afternoon was a real countess. And you chewing gum!" How do you know I haven't been dead of late in me. I'm not blabbing anything.

What Do You Know?

Do you know:

1. What important connection with the Revolutionary War has Cambridge, Massachusetts?
2. Who is the hero of Lowell's poem about the Holy Grail?
3. What is associated with the name "Hereford"?
4. What did Patrick Henry reply if liberty could not be obtained?
5. What three things are pointed out by the Declaration of Independence as rights of Americans?
6. On what coast of Africa is the Negro republic of Liberia?

Answers to today's test:

1. Washington took command of the army there, 2. Sir Lancelot, 3. Cattle, 4. Death, 5. Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, 6. West.

When the Fruit of the Tree Is Sour

—By Claude G. Bowers—

NEVER HAS THE WORLD been more interesting, with so many potentialities of change, than it is today. We are looking upon a tremendous drama in the process of development, wondering what the next act will be and what the final denouement.

The crisis in the Far East is infinitely more than merely "another fight" between the Japanese and the Chinese; for Russia is in the offing and, unless the conference of the nations can successfully mediate, it is not beyond the range of reason that Europe may be involved in another death struggle. . . . In Ireland the age-old issues are reviving and peasant boys are drilling in the moonlight against the "war with England." . . . Germany is negotiating for conclusion of the negotiations on debts and reparations and Hitler's militant Fascists, with fine audacities, are moving toward power, having just won a sweeping victory at the polls. . . . Philip Scruton, one of the most feared of the Socialists in England, has become a Viscount and will move from the Commons to the more ornate and precious house of peers.

The English are pushing through a measure of one hundred per cent tax on imports, entering the tariff war of vengeance.

And Dino Grandi, young, brilliant, charming, embodying the idea of the power of the state, is conferring in Washington on armament and debts—matters mysterious. . . . All the world's a stage and never in history has the drama been more significant.

No Possible Escape
The President has abandoned the hope of postponing increases in the taxes until after the Presidential election, coming over to the Democrats and the insurgents on the tariff.

With a deficit of two billion dollars at the end of the fiscal year certain, there is no possible escape. A prohibitive tariff has reduced the customs revenue, and the bursting of the G. O. P. bubble in the market, leaving more wreckage than the Mississippi or the South Sea bubbles, has cut the revenue from income and corporation taxes appallingly. The cost of government goes on. Money must be raised; and money comes from taxes.

And it will be Congress, not the Administration, that will determine where the taxes are to fall. The Administration policy would be to spare the policy as much as possible but as certain as the revolutions of the earth is the increasing of the taxes in the higher brackets. Mr. Mellon will be unable to prevent it. Mr. Hoover may lack the courage to attempt it with an election coming on and the depression impressing on the people the tragic contradiction of millions depending on the bread of charity within the shadow of enormous deficits.

There Are Doubters Now
The record of the Administration will soon be complete and ready for the judgment of the people. The fruit is not in accord with the high-sounding promises. Perhaps the proudest promise of 1929 was too great. There is no greater vice than overstatement and none more dangerous. In 1929, and for a year before, we were assured that Mr. Hoover was a business "wizard" capable of putting government on a business basis and when this was questioned, the sceptic was cited to his "sensational business successes in Europe." No one knew about these triumphs, but no one doubted. There are doubters now.

As a "business administration" that at Washington has been disappointing. Because of market-minded statementship

And human greed we had the market crash bearing in the side of general ruin individual fortunes, the savings of a lifetime, banks, business houses; and all this made inevitable by the violation of sound business and banking principles on which the Administration smiled.

An Administration marked by the blackest depression we have ever known. And now a deficit of as much as $2,000,000,000! And now the increasing of the burden of taxation!

Not Good Business Sense
And now we know, as the majority of the people foresee, that it is not good business sense to raise a prohibition tariff wall; for the retaliation of other nations has lost us markets on which our prosperity depended; and now our industries are more interested in building branch factories in countries than in expanding their factories here.

That was not good business sense; it showed a lack of vision. A great public building program promised through the rivers has not been undertaken. The cost of government has been lowered through the promised reorganization of the department.

It is not fair to business men to call this a "business administration"; it is nothing of the sort. Favors "A System of Social Insurance"

Nicholas Murray Butler, one of the most intellectual of the Republicans, has made a striking admission: "The Republican Party seems to me to be where the Wing Party was in 1858-60. It has a fine tradition, but just now it seems to lack both unity, capacity and courage to deal with grave problems."

He calls upon his party to submit a platform program, and makes suggestions including his well-known plan regarding debts, reparations and international relations. Some of these suggestions have not reduced the customs revenue, and the bursting of the G. O. P. bubble in the market, leaving more wreckage than the Mississippi or the South Sea bubbles, has cut the revenue from income and corporation taxes appallingly. The cost of government goes on. Money must be raised; and money comes from taxes.

There is no use to the standard of living and of keeping up the rates of wages through a high tariff when there are from six to seven million human beings who are getting no wages, and do not know where their livelihood is to come from.

Thus he favors "a system of social insurance," including unemployment insurance, primarily at the instance of industry, and state supervision if that be needed. He would not prefer that the industry spontaneously and universally from government, but without governmental initiative of some kind, which need not involve it in payments, nothing general can be done, or will be.

1932 Will Not Be a Year for Pussfooting
This submission by Dr. Butler of a plan to be discussed by his fellow Republicans is constructive, but will be destructive of the sanity of the Administration. It leaves no room to be reminded that 1932 will not be a year for pussfooting, but one for plain speaking, no more. Prejudicial government policies, not matters having to do with the relation to government in America, will determine the course of the year.
